

Busnaper Denied
Access to Canada

OAKLAND, Calif. — James Schoenfeld, suspected abductor of 26 school children, was turned back when he tried to cross the Canadian border July 19, it was said Monday night, because he had four firearms with him. He was released because it was not known he was wanted in connection with the kidnapping, which involved the abduction of 26 school children, their bus driver, and the taking of their bus. Schoenfeld tried the border crossing three days after the abduction but before warrants were issued in the case.

American Imports
Tip Trade Balance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States imported considerably more than it exported in June — largely due to a surge in oil imports — eclipsing May's surplus, the government said Tuesday.

The Commerce Department said June's $377.3 million deficit almost eclipsed May's $395.6 million surplus — the nation's only trade surplus of the year.

As a result, the United States has a $1.048 billion trade deficit for the year as a whole, compared with the $5.045 billion surplus it had at the same time in 1975.

Gas Bombs Blast
S. African School

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Gasoline bombs exploded in a black high school on the outskirts of Pretoria today, destroying hundreds of examination papers, police said.

Joseph Motau, acting principal of Mamelodi high school, said several of the bombs did not go off and there were no injuries. The principal said the exam papers had been marked and pupils would not have to take the tests again.

Black schools around Pretoria and Johannesburg reopened last week, but attendance has been low. The schools were shut down following widespread racial violence in mid-June that killed 176 persons and wounded 1,139.

Reds Move Into
Italian Parliament

ROME (UPI) — Italy's parliament elected its first Communist committee chairmen in almost three decades today in a move that gave the Marxists increased influence over taxation and government spending policy.

The committee chairmanships, allocated in a compromise arrangement between the Communists and ruling Christian Democrats, put Marxists at the head of four committees in the Chamber of Deputies and three in the Senate.

The Communist chairmen were elected according to a compromise accord with the Christian Democrats worked out Monday night that reflected the Marxists' increased parliamentary strength following the June 20-21 national elections.

Chemical Leak

SEVESO, Italy (UPI) — The Italian army has evacuated 216 persons, including 80 children, who lived near a chemical defoliant factory that leaked a white cloud of poisonous gas, turning leaves yellow and inflaming human skin.

Army units Monday evacuated the 43 families from their homes around the Icmesa chemical factory in Seveso, near the northern outskirts of Milan. They were moved out by bus with only the clothes on their backs.

Fire Kills Seven
In Minnesota City

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn. (UPI) — An apartment fire today killed seven persons and hospitalized four others in this northern Minnesota city.

Firemen probed the debris for other bodies. A fire dispatcher said one girl was missing. "We don't know if she was staying there or not," he said.

Reagan And Senator Are A Strange Match

Schweiker Choice Surprises The GOP

United Press International

Ronald Reagan's choice of liberal Pennsylvania Sen. Richard Schweiker was a calculated blockbuster. But so far it hasn't busted any blocs of delegates.

An extensive but incomplete recheck by UPI of Pennsylvania's 103-person delegation shows the only firm switch to Reagan is Schweiker himself — and there is some indication of possible movement the other way.

An uncommitted conservative college student previously leaning toward Reagan was offended by the choice: "My gut reaction is to jump immediately to the Ford team," said James Stein, 21.

But most Pennsylvanians wanted to wait until after the entire delegation talked to Ford Thursday in a meeting that has been scheduled for some time.

Meanwhile in Plains, Ga., Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter and his running mate, Walter Mondale, finished intensive defense briefings and begin consulting economic advisers on campaign issues of employment and inflation.

Reagan's dramatic announcement at midday Monday belied his repeated statements that he wanted a running mate whose philosophy was "compatible" with his own.

Sen. Richard Schweiker

Schweiker, at a Washington press conference following the announcement, acknowledged differences of viewpoint but said he and Reagan could form a new coalition that would revive the fortunes of the Republican party. He said Reagan's decision demonstrates "boldness and candor."

Reactions were fast and furious, and ranged from stunned disbelief to pleased wonderment to bitterness.

Ford himself had no immediate comment, but his campaign manager Rogers C.B. Morton called the ticket a "mismatch," and said "It appears to be an effort to exchange the second-highest office in the land for a handful of delegates."

From all across the land the comments poured in, but there was no indication of any early avalanche of either approval or disapproval from Republicans.

In Georgia, Carter expressed surprise at the announcement but had little else to say about it. The Democratic candidate arose early, took a long walk shortly after 6 a.m., and then settled in with Mondale for a full day of briefings by his issues advisors.

In midafternoon he told reporters he rejects Reagan's contention the United

Faerber Wants Action Against NYC

Water Suit Threatened

KINGSTON — Governor Hugh Carey's indication that he would veto the Catskill water release bill has elicited the threat of a lawsuit and the promise of political retribution from local sportsmen and environmentalists.

Frederick G. Faerber III, president of the Federated Sportsmen's Club said this morning that he would contribute his own money toward a lawsuit against the City of New York if the bill, which would regulate the discharge of water from that city's reservoirs in the Catskills, was vetoed.

"The counties and the people involved should sue New York City for the 1905 move that took, like a thief, land from the people of this region."

Faerber thinks that "given an honest jury and the fair court system" such a suit would have a 90 per cent chance of succeeding.

He also added that the governor could lose political support in the region if he goes through with his plans.

"Carey's not interested in the people of this county and I don't think he'll get any votes if the veto goes through," he said.

The legislation effects waterflow along 180 miles of the Neversink and Delaware rivers and the Esopus Creek. Proponents of the bill have charged that New York City arbitrarily damaged the ecology of these waterways by either letting them run dry or discharging so much water that they become flooded.

John N. Hoeko, president of Catskill Waters, the conservation group which lobbied for the bill, echoed Faerber's sentiments on the possibility of a court case if the veto occurs.

"We are very seriously considering such litigation. I have spoken at length with a number of people who see it as a strong possibility."

Hoeko, who personally helped the legislation win assembly approval, said he was crestfallen at the veto possibility calling it a "stupid decision on the part of Carey."

"When it comes time for re-election I think he will find the people of this region very unresponsive. He will lose upstate votes if he vetoes that bill."

The legislation had passed the Assembly by a slim margin late last month.

Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey Jr., Saugerties, who had co-sponsored the bill, has been out of town for the last two days and his office had not received any word from him on the possible action.

The governor's decision is expected Wednesday.

City Cops Fly Away in UFO?

By SID LEAVITT
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — People from outer space have abducted two Kingston cops, see, and the officers' wives are holding a press conference out in Ulster. Got that?

With little more preparation than that bizarre premise, a dozen area newspaper and broadcast reporters became actors Monday night as they played themselves at a "press conference" staged for the videotape cameras of Woodstock film makers John Keeler and Ruth Rotko.

The story, "The Last Space Voyage of Wallace Ramsel," may be bizarre, but it isn't improbable, said Keeler, whose earlier films included documentaries on unidentified flying objects (UFO's).

"The probability of people from outer space approaching this planet either already or in the future," Keeler said, pausing at the guffaws of newsmen as they read their sketchy scripts in the background, "is very likely."

The story was inspired by a UFO sighting reported several years ago by two Kingston police officers, James Wallace and Richard Ramsell, but that incident is only a starting point for the high-flying "Last Space Voyage."

As the newsmen come in, the wives of the two officers, renamed Wallace Ramsel and Charles Parker, have learned their husbands are on a spacecraft heading for the aliens' home planet, a trip that somehow is being broadcast over nationwide TV.

When Keeler turned on his camera, the class amateur actors turned out to be Charles Bermpohl of the Mid-Hudson Leisure and Sylvia Day of the Ulster County Townsman, who grilled professional actresses Rochelle Haas and Caroline Cox as if the world presses were holding for a remake.

However, the stern faces got a little shaky when the Ulster County Gazette's Phil Nero asked the fictitious Mrs. Ramsel if she thought her husband was in outer space because of marital troubles at home.

"The creatures look like you and me, only smaller."

As the newsmen pushed and shoved outside the 20 Brookside Court home of Paul Marcello, a friend of the production, the neighborhood youngsters stood in a polite circle outside the glaring lights.

"Yeah, I've seen this all before," one youngster said. "They were shooting here last month and the lady in the green dress had an argument with the sheriff."

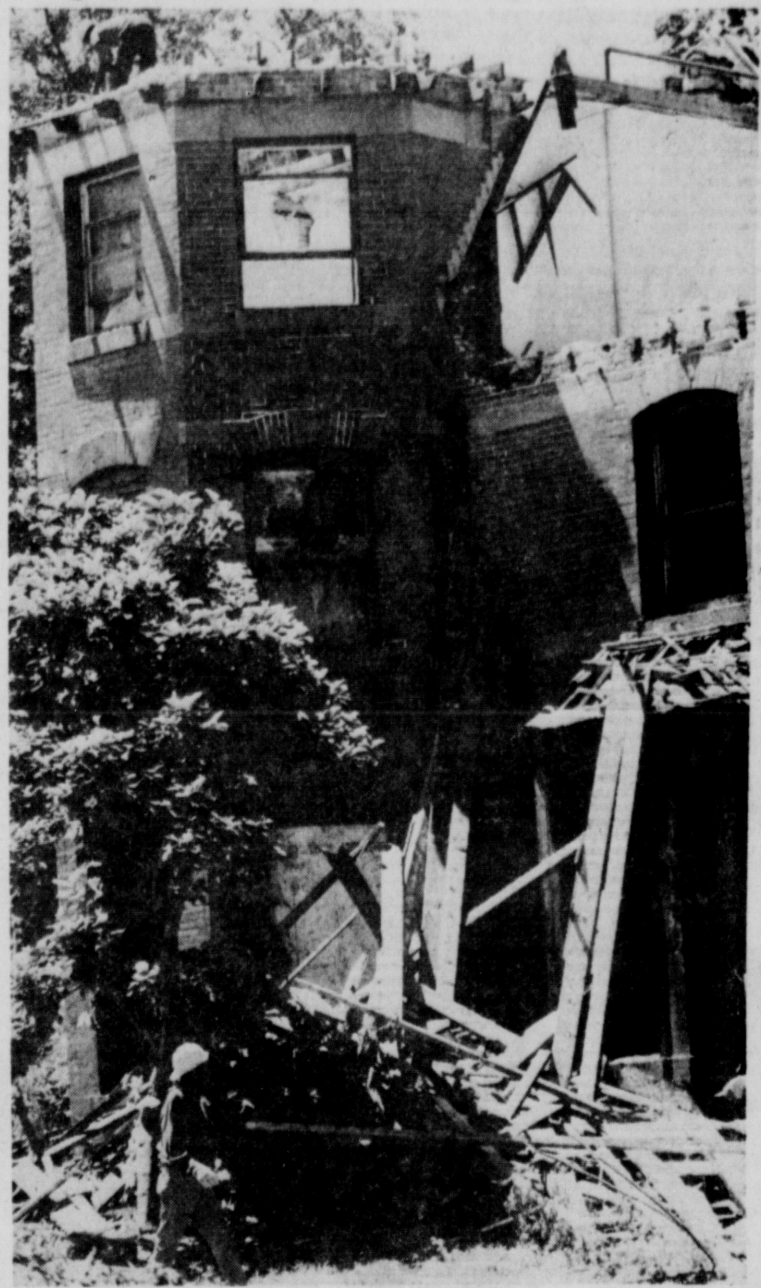

Among the other local people cast as themselves in the film is Ulster County Sheriff Thomas F. Mayone.

But by this point in the story, the only local law officer left to protect the wives from the newsmen is real-life Woodstock auto mechanic Michael Imberman, cast as a lowly police dispatcher without a gun.

"I have trouble following the story, too," Imberman admitted to a newsmen. "I'm going to wait and see the film."

Keeler and Rotko hoped the documentary-type drama would be released early next summer on the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS), serving educational channels 17 in Albany and 13 in New York City.

COMING DOWN

Demolition crews take down a third building of the old St. Ann's Convent complex on Broadway to make way for a new subsidized elderly housing complex, expected to be finished in March. The six-story, 104-unit structure will remain private property, owned and operated by Granada Builders Inc., with federal rent subsidies available to eligible tenants through the Kingston Housing Authority under the so-called Section 8 program. A fourth St. Ann's building, a picturesque carriage house, will be preserved alongside the new building.

500 Evacuated From Lebanon by U.S. Navy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — U.S. Embassy officials ordered more than 500 foreign nationals, including about 200 Americans, to assemble at a beachfront hotel today for a sea evacuation from battle-torn Beirut.

U.S. officials said the Palestine Liberation Organization had agreed to provide security for the morning landing of U.S. Navy boats in leftist-held western Beirut to ferry the evacuees to warships offshore.

They said they had "tacit" promises from Christian rightist militias, which often have shelled the city's western coast, to hold their fire during the American operation.

An embassy spokesman said weekend applicants had swelled the list of foreigners wanting out of the ravaged capital to "more than 500," but no precise figures were available "because they're coming in all the time."

About 200 of the 1,500 Americans in Lebanon were reported registered for the evacuation.

Most of the U.S. Embassy staff was ordered to go, leaving behind a 15-man skeleton staff, including Marine guards who protect the mission.

Special U.S. Envoy Talcott Seelye decided to leave aboard the Navy craft.

The United States originally planned an overland convoy to Damascus but scrapped the idea when the PLO warned

it could not guarantee the safety of the evacuees, Palestinian sources said.

Meanwhile, fighting raged the entire length of the capital's 3½-mile-long confrontation line only two days after the failure of an Arab League plan to use peace-keeping troops to expand the buffer zone separating the Moslem and Christian sectors.

The heaviest combat was reported in the Palestinian refugee camp of Tal Zaatar in southeast Beirut and in the Moslem slum district of Nabaa.

PLO spokesmen said they received word from Tal Zaatar that 250 persons died in the collapse of a basement bomb shelter under Christian shelling last week.

Arab League mediator Hassan Sabri Kholy announced suspension of his peace plan until a new truce agreement could be worked out.

The decision followed Sunday's short-lived cease-fire, which was shattered when the ultra-rightist "Tigra" militiamen of Interior Minister Camille Chamoun fired on Saudi Arabian and Sudanese peace-keeping forces to prevent them from taking up positions on the Christian side of the buffer zone.

Kholy met with Chamoun Monday and said the rightist leader had "agreed to be cooperative."

Bridge-Dweller Is Dead

HIGHLAND — State Police at Highland report finding the body of Wacław Strzeczynski, 55, an area eccentric well known to users of the Mid-Hudson Bridge. Mr. Strzeczynski, who was also known as Mike, lived under the western end of the bridge and walked across the bridge to Poughkeepsie every day, frequently carrying a bundle of newspapers with him. Mr. Strzeczynski also spent a great deal of time in the Poughkeepsie area, particularly at the library.

The body was found early Monday evening by State Trooper Girard Henne and Roger Hageman at the top of a cut in the rock under the western end of the bridge. The foot search was instituted when area residents said they hadn't seen him for several weeks. Police say Strzeczynski had probably been dead for about that long. Ulster County Coroner Arthur Chipp issued a verdict of death by natural causes.

A veteran of World War II, Strzeczynski is survived by a sister.

Hing Gets Angry Note

NEW PALTZ — Bruce Hing the state university student who chose to sue the county Department of Social Services for assistance rather than live in the County Home has received a threatening letter.

Hing, who contacted the Freeman on Monday from his university dormitory residence, said he received an unsigned letter postmarked July 24, Kingston, which included a clipping from the paper's classified ad section and a hand-written message.

"If you people keep ripping us off white middle class we will finally get p--- off enough to have our own riot."

The three employment ads circled were for two waiter positions and a cloth cutter job.

Hing said he has been unable to work since he suffered a neck injury which he is now being treated for.

The State Supreme Court is currently considering Hing's case, which was heard last Friday in Albany.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Prosecutor Sam Mayerson Dropped a bombshell at the trial of William and Emily Harris today with announcement that Patricia Hearst was ready to take the witness stand and testify against them at their kidnap-robbery-assault trial.

Mayerson said he had been informed just this morning by Miss Hearst's attorney, Albert Johnson, that the 22-year-old heiress was prepared to "waive all rights and privileges" which might lead to self-incrimination since she faces the same charges.

Mayerson had just about concluded the government case against the Harris couple, former SLA captors of Miss Hearst, in the charges stemming from a May, 1974, incident at a Los Angeles sporting goods store in which all three were involved.

Miss Hearst's trial had been severed from that of the Harises while she underwent psychiatric examination ordered by the judge at her San Francisco bank robbery trial and Mayerson had said previously that the prosecution did not intend to call Miss Hearst as a witness at the Harris trial.

Mayerson's statement caught the defense completely by surprise.

Mayerson asked for a recess of the trial until Thursday saying he wanted to go to San Diego to talk with Miss Hearst at the Federal Detention Center there about what she might be willing to testify to.

Monday, Miss Hearst's trial on the Los Angeles charges was postponed until early next year after her lawyer argued that it should not be held at all.

The trial of the Harris couple was recessed Monday for Miss Hearst's appearance in the same high-security courtroom with a wall of bullet-proof glass separating the court from the gallery.

The 11-count indictment naming the Harises and Miss Hearst involved a shoplifting incident at Mel's Sporting Goods store in which the front of the store was sprayed by machine gun fire from a van across the street.

The Harris has said Miss Hearst fired the gun and endangered them as well as the store security guard who was trying to capture Harris.

Miss Hearst and the Harises did not see each other in the courtroom Monday. The Harises were battling to prevent introduction as evidence of a defiant tape recording they made with Miss Hearst a month after the sporting goods store incident and the killing of six members of the SLA by police in the Watts section of Los Angeles.

Ethics Unit Urges Reprimand for Sikes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ethics Committee says Rep. Robert L.F. Sikes, D-Fla., "has violated standards of conduct applicable to all members of Congress," and should be reprimanded but not punished.

The panel's formal report on the Sikes case was published Monday and confirmed earlier UPI reports that it would recommend a reprimand on two of three complaints against him and was withholding a rebuke on the third only because it took place too long ago.

It was the first time the committee has acted against any member of Congress since it was created in 1968 after the late Adam Clayton Powell was expelled from the House for misuse of committee funds.

But one member chastised the committee for the July 1 "leak" of its findings to UPI and the Washington Star.

The report is tentatively scheduled to come to the House floor Thursday, where it could be opened to amendment by a majority vote or simply voted up or down.

Sikes declined comment pending a speech in the House, but in a CBS interview he called the findings unjustified and said his re-election chances have not been damaged by the action.

The committee acted after

Common Cause, the citizens advocacy group, filed complaints claiming that Sikes: — Failed to disclose stock holdings in Fairchild Industries, a major defense contractor, while he was chairman of a House appropriations subcommittee on military construction. — Failed to disclose holding stock in a bank which he helped establish on the Pensacola Naval Air Station. — Failed to disclose an interest in a Florida land development project at a time he pushed legislation advantageous to the project.

Gas Rates Tripled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Power Commission nearly tripled today the rates producers can charge for natural gas sold in interstate commerce.

The commission, ruling after a two-year review of the current ceiling of 52 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, set a new ceiling of $1.42 for gas headed for interstate commerce after Jan. 1, 1975.

It also set a $1.01 ceiling for gas dedicated from Jan. 1, 1973, to Dec. 31, 1974.

Gas which is already under sales contracts could not be increased in price unless its contracts allowed that. Some contracts have renewal clauses.

Commissioner Don S. Smith strongly disagreed with the 3-1 FPC decision, saying, "It is too high."

King of the Burgers

A new World Hamburger Eating record was set by John Duchek of Houston, Tex., when he consumed 18 burgers in 30 minutes, surpassing the previous Guinness Book mark by one. The contest was part of festivities benefiting the March of Dimes. Earlier in the day, a 500 pound hamburger was auctioned off for $6,200.

How to avoid the 3 mistakes of funeral planning.

Anyone who's planned a funeral knows how hard it is to make wise decisions under emotional strain. And how easy it is to (1) accept rather than select the type of service to be performed; (2) overlook some of the options; and (3) possibly spend more than you should for the funeral.

National Selected Morticians offer a free booklet that will help you avoid these mistakes. Read it and you can become more confident and better prepared to make the right decisions if, and when, the need arises.

You can receive your copy, without cost, by mailing the coupon, or by visiting or telephoning our office.

D'Amboise Did Well at Woodstock

Editor's Note: John T. Sloper was involved in the theater for 18 years as stage manager and director. Since his move to Wappingers Falls in 1953, he has directed 24 productions locally. He now works freelance and has been writing theater reviews for area publications since 1960.

On leaving the Woodstock Playhouse Monday evening, a patron was heard to grumble, "That wasn't a ballet show — that was a ballet lesson!"

In a sense this was true, but the concert by Jacques d'Amboise and his friends from the New York City Ballet was far more than that.

The one-night event was a demonstration of the warmth that can be generated when a self-effacing but superb artist, making it all look so easy, shows how its done. The personable d'Amboise, making full use of the intimacy of the Playhouse and the informality of the bare stage; treating even the most serious aspects of his work with quiet humor; showing off his dances to their best advantage; and defying the fact that, at 42, he cannot quite perform all the spectacular feats that he did when younger or even some that he has done in recent performances at Woodstock, won the overflow audience completely.

There is a quality in the man, quite apart from his technical prowess or knowledge of his art that makes him, above all, a star entertainer — even when relaxing.

D'Amboise is turning more and more to choreography and a good half of the works shown were his own creations — at least one of them still in progress.

He is still, of course, capable of spectacular dancing but perhaps the most interesting segment of the program was when he was coaching Nina Fedorova in the lead role she will dance in a new work of his due this fall. As he corrected her "mistakes" and coaxed even more expression from her, we all began to appreciate anew the effort and artistry that go into every performance of poetry-in-motion that we take for granted.

The concert was a "ballet show" in the best sense. It not only provided dancing that was exquisite but gave each of us — balletomane and neophyte alike — a far greater appreciation of just what that indescribable thing called dance is trying to communicate to us.

Others involved were Janie Parker, Francisco Moncion and pianist Jerry Zimmerman. They are far above needing any paltry words of praise from me — others have said it far better.

If I seem to slough off a detailed description of each number, it's because I don't feel it's necessary. The important thing is to tell you what happened; a lesson in the humanities!

D'Amboise will be back at Woodstock again. Better see him next time!

Two Arrested in Rhinebeck

RHINEBECK — Rhinebeck state police arrested a 28-year-old Red Hook man and his 17-year-old companion Monday in connection with a burglary at the Rhinebeck Village garage on Jan. 23. The arrest followed a long investigation by Troopers Arthur Pierce and Dennis McGuire.

Arrested were Clarence Shanley, 28, Red Hook, and a 17-year-old, also from Red Hook, who was given youthful offender status. The two were arraigned before Rhinebeck Justice Joseph Waters, who remanded Shanley to the Dutchess County jail in lieu of $2,000 bail and released the youthful offender on his own recognizance.

The chainsaw stolen in the burglary was recovered.

Structure Fire
The three companies of the Roosevelt Fire Department combined to save two-thirds of a one-story structure in the Greenfield Housing Development in Hyde Park Monday. Assistant Chief Roland Perdomo said the structure was fully involved in flames when the 60 fire fighters arrived at the scene at Butternut Court in Hyde Park. The fire was under control within a half an hour, according to Perdomo.

The cause of the fire is under investigation by the Dutchess County Sheriff's Department. No one was injured in the blaze. The house is reportedly owned by Robert Roche.

Man Injured
A Woodstock man is reported in fair condition at Benedictine Hospital after his car went off the road in the Town of Hurley at 3:40 a.m. this morning.

Hurley state police say Kenneth Gordon, 23, Woodstock, was westbound on Maverick Road when his vehicle went off the right side of the highway. Gordon apparently overcorrected and the car went off the left shoulder of the road, stik-

ing numerous trees. Gordon was taken to Benedictine Hospital by the West Hurley Ambulance Squad. He had lacerations of the face and arms and is reported in fair condition.

Brush Fire Set
The Kingston fire department says brush fire which it

put out late Monday night was deliberately set.

The department reportedly received a call at 11:42 Monday night for a brush fire at the rear of the Colonial Gardens Apartments. The fire encompassed about 100 square feet and was extinguished with portable water tanks, pressurized water extinguishers and brooms.

DOCTOR'S AMBULANCE aided the injured in a head-on collision at the intersection of Lucas Avenue and Joys Lane in Hurley today. Three persons were injured. Ernest Longyear, 24, 55 Dunneman Street, Kingston, the driver of one of the vehicles, and his passenger, Gary Moore, Box 233, Rosendale, no age available, were taken to Benedictine Hospital where they were being treated this morning. Ambulance personnel said they were seriously injured. The driver of the other car, Mrs. Ann Connelly, South Cairo, was taken to Kingston Hospital where she is reported in stable condition.

Paper May Foil Zena Change

WOODSTOCK—A little green piece of paper may be the monkey wrench thrown into the midst of a controversial Zena zoning change that could defuse the issue...temporarily.

According to Herbert Hekler, director of the Ulster County Planning Board, an action taken by the Woodstock Town Board in granting a zoning change to developer Richard Mellert in June may have been invalidated by an oversight. Town officials reportedly forgot to file a final action report with the county planning board when they granted Mellert a change from residential-agricultural to commercial C-1 on a parcel of land at Zena's four corners. Mellert has plans to construct several businesses at the site, plans that have aroused much antipathy among Zena residents.

The law requires that a report must be filed with the county within seven days after a municipality takes action on a zoning change. Failure to comply may invalidate the action, if so decided by judicial review.

Since the zoning change took place in June, some opposition has formed to commercialization in the form of a petition signed by 125 residents, presented to town officials at their last board meeting in protest to the C-1 designation.

A similar issue whereby the town would incorporate a toned down commercial zone (C-2) into five hamlets is also in the works. It is scheduled to be reviewed at the board's Aug. 5 meeting.

Woodstock Supervisor Val Cadden, when contacted by the Freeman, said she had not heard of the possibility of invalidation of the town's C-1 zoning action for Zena.

Gage Case Set for Sept. Trial

KINGSTON—Saugerties Mayor James V. Gage is scheduled to go to trial "sometime in September," according to Ulster County First Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh.

There is no trial term in County Court in either July or August, he said, stating that the Gage case and four others are slated for the September calendar.

Gage was indicted Jan. 21 this year by an Ulster County Grand Jury on two counts of second degree grand larceny for allegedly embezzling some $15,000 in tax monies and for the alleged overpayment of about $1,500 to $2,000 in salary to himself while acting as village clerk-treasurer.

Clerk for ten years, Gage was indicted following a grand jury probe that extended back to 1971 and a state audit. In 1974 he resigned as clerk treasurer and ran for mayor on the Village Party ticket, narrowly defeating the incumbent Mayor Vernon "Joe" Benjamin by 37 votes. He has continued to serve as mayor since that time.

Kavanagh said County Court Judge Raymond J. Mino will make up the September calendar, probably by Aug. 31, and will decide which case to move to trial first.

Asked if any deals had been offered Gage during the interim, Kavanagh responded, "The only thing offered Mr. Gage was the opportunity to plead to the indictment, which any defendant has."

The Saugerties mayor had pleaded innocent to all charges Feb. 2 on arraignment in county court and was freed in his own recognizance. His case, handled by attorney Thomas Rea, was adjourned several times prior to the summer interim.

Village officials have softpeddled the issue, stating that they prefer to allow the courts to fulfill their function.

Unwed Fathers' Bill Okayed

ALBANY (UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey today announced his approval of legislation designed to clearly define the rights of unwed fathers to have a voice in adoption proceedings involving their children.

Carey said recent court decisions had created "substantial confusion as to the obligation of courts and adoption agencies towards putative fathers."

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that unwed fathers must be given an opportunity to be heard before a decision terminating his parental rights, and the state Court of Appeals decided the consent of unwed fathers need not be obtained if their children were offered for adoption.

The bill requires that notice of adoption or other court proceedings be sent by registered mail to the last known address of any father of an out-of-wedlock child where the father can be determined through court proceedings or that father's own registration with the state Department of Social Services.

Carey said the notice would "enable such persons to present evidence to the court relevant to the best interests of the child." The law does not require the consent of unwed fathers before an adoption.

"The bill largely accomplishes its aim of achieving finality as early as possible in a child's life in the establishment of the rights, interests and obligations of all parties," Carey said.

However, the governor said

the 10 day's notice requirement should be lengthened and stronger efforts to find the fathers should be required.

The law, which goes into effect Jan. 1, was sponsored by Sens. John Dunne, R-Garden City, Joseph Pisani, R-New Rochelle, and Donald Halperin, D-Brooklyn.

"Ask about our Free Checking ... Plus!"

You hear a lot these days about free checking accounts, and even though everybody would like you to think they're all pretty much alike, we'd like you to know they're not.

For instance:

1. Do all the others offer free checking plus a Master Charge card with a $1,000 line of credit cash reserve—tied to their checking account? Ours does.
2. Do all the others offer free checking plus a savings account with the option to transfer funds automatically from their checking account to their savings account? Ours does.
3. Do all the others offer free checking plus preferred interest rates on personal installment loans of $1,000 or more, a rent-free safe deposit box, or free money orders and traveler's checks? Ours does.

And there's one other plus nobody else offers either. A free T-shirt iron-on for the kids when you ask us about our V.I.P. Free Checking ... Plus. At The Bank.

Sign The Water Bill

A bill protecting Catskill rivers from further mistreatment by New York City is sitting on Governor Hugh Carey's desk awaiting his signature.

The legislation, sponsored in the State Assembly by Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, would strip New York City of the power to regulate how much water the city releases from its reservoirs into the region's ailing rivers and streams.

A million dollars worth of studies have shown that the city has manipulated and mismanaged reservoir outflows into the waters for over half a century.

Environmental groups, such as Catskill Waters, Audubon Society, and the Environmental Planning Lobby, have opposed this legacy of abuse of the Catskill's potentially great rivers.

The legislation would return control over Catskill reservoir discharges to the state Division of Environmental Conservation. Four past and present DEC commissioners backed the move.

Mayor Abe Beame is lobbying against the bill. But the city's what-me-worry? attitude toward the Travers Hollow Bridge and its astounding refusal to pick up the tab for 16 years of nowplowing on city roads around the Ashokan Reservoir prove that the city can't be trusted to look after the interests of the Catskill region.

The city has amply demonstrated that it is an unreliable guardian of New York's water resources. It ought to be relieved of the job; Governor Carey should sign bill A12135-A stripping the city of its authority to control reservoir discharges today.

Architect Says It's Romanesque

Dear Editor:

Your answer to my letter in regard to the architecture of the old City Hall merely goes to show that you should not only look up your basic premises, but should also make sure that they are valid.

If your Roy E. Graham, A.I.A., resident architect at Williamsburg, thinks that the old building is Richardsonian Romanesque, he also should engage in a searching for the facts. It is evident that Mr. Graham does not know Romanesque from Shinola, and I would be pleased to tell him so personally.

No one can designate the architecture of the building better than I, for

I designed the alteration work under the City Hall Architects Commission — Myron Teller, Gerard Betz and George Lowe, architects — in 1927 when it was decided to tone down the flamboyant Italian Gothic of the original structure. And if there is any slightest trace of interior details in Colonial Revival, I can't imagine where they would be — unless they came from some Italian colony.

Roy E. Graham is off base. Furthermore, he passed up a very fine example of Richardsonian Romanesque in the St. James Methodist Church here in Kingston.

12-Year-Old Has Good Advice

Dear Editor:

I was surprised you put on the front page a picture of four people on a bicycle.

I am a student that has just finished elementary school, and in each of my years there they stressed the importance of bicycle safety by showing films, giving out booklets, and even had P.T.O. sponsored performers give bike safety lessons.

One main rule was never ride two people on one bike because it is a tremendous safety hazard. Showing a picture of four people on a bike may encourage people to get more people on a bike just to set a "record." And I'm sure you don't want to do that.

Staffer Missed Beauties of 9W

Dear Editor:

As a veteran 9W driver, I certainly appreciated Pam Golinski's observations in Staff's Chance.

One paragraph bothered me, though, and I hope Ms. Golinski may have had second thoughts on the matter. This concerned the "...the rolling desolate plains...the tiny villages which have very little aesthetic appeal."

Come on, Pam, wake up yourself. Granted, coming out of Highland the state has done it again on the 299/9W interchange by putting traffic lights up, confusing things even more, but let's travel a little further north. Coming off the double lane highway, we enter the Town of Esopus. Notice something? Sure, the temperature drops during warm and muggy days. Try it some time.

A little further on, we come to the "tiny village" of West Park. Look over to your left, Pam. On the other side of that mountain is a cabin known as Slabslides. There, many years ago, a kind and gentle man named John Burroughs lived and wrote. I'll bet old John never saw two, much less a million, pine trees that looked alike.

Maybe the village doesn't have aesthetic appeal to you, Pam, but presidents, governors and the early industrial leaders and inventors of this country must have found something worthwhile. Maybe it was the peacefulness, because it's still here.

Continuing north, we pass Marist Brothers, then down Col. Payne's hill. Look over to your left again, Pam. See that ballfield? It was built and maintained by the firemen from the Esopus Fire Department. As a member of the distaff side, you might appreciate the fact that there are a lot of little girls who would have been denied the fun of having their own softball league if that field hadn't been built. Cost to them or the taxpayers? Nothing. It was, and still is, a voluntary effort on the part of the firemen.

Speaking of the firemen, we should be passing through the tiny village of Esopus by now. That's where the firehouse is. Stop in sometime. Look at the new lime-yellow pumper. It's just about the best one in Ulster County. You might meet some of the firemen, too. They meet a lot of people on 9W all the time. Usually at 2 in the morning when that dread disease you describe as 9W-itis strikes.

By this time you should be passing Mt. St. Alphonsus. It's on your right, there, where the top of what appears to be a castle hovers over the tree tops. Ever been there? You get the same feeling some get when they visit West Point. Tranquility and awe.

Here comes Ulster Park up ahead. Apple orchards! You're in Macintosh country now. Look carefully. The apples will be ready soon. Why not stop at Montella's or Nemeth's and get a few?

Mirror Lake is on your right now. Soon that coolness you first felt seven miles back will be leaving you. You're getting near Port Ewen and Kingston. While you continue, I'll stop here at Johnny's Drive In. He has a sure cure for 9W-itis. If you had some time I would have invited you in for a cup of coffee, but I know you are in a hurry.

By the way, if your trip is lonely, why not get a CB set for your car? Northbound every morning, the "double-deuce" and "backpacker" will keep you company. "Flagger-two" will let you know how traffic is coming out of Kingston. You'll meet "Charlie Brown" and a few others, too. On the side, "Sleepy Base" will always be able to help you if you have a problem while on the way in.

So long, Pam. At least part of your trip wasn't so bad, was it? From now on maybe you will enjoy it more.

Living The Strenuous Life

I am among the millions of Americans who were hit as by the force of revelation by a stricture of Mr. Eisenhower's doctor, who lifted his famous patient from the bowels of despair after the President was struck down in Denver in 1955. Dr. Paul Dudley White bicycled in from Boston, took over, issued daily medical bulletins, and an occasional homily.

The one that changed my life, offered me great strategic serenity in exchange for immediate and quotidian mini-tortures. In order to lead a long and healthy life, said Dr. White one day to the reporters, you must observe three rules: 1) stop smoking cigarettes; 2) do not permit yourself to weigh more than you did when 25 years old; and 3) exercise strenuously.

It was bad enough giving up cigarettes, but eventually the pains of withdrawal cease. Holding down your weight becomes increasingly difficult as you get older, but you can still permit yourself day-long, and even week-long orgies between the burgeoning fests. It is the physical exercise that is the endless spirit-crusher. Day after day. I live in mortal terror that science will establish, when I am about 70 years old, that I might have survived by doing 25, instead of the 30 push-ups I do every day, in dutiful memory of Paul Dudley White.

These I supplement with one hour, most weeks, in a gymnasium; and recently, in order to avoid jogging, I bought an indoor bicycle, and when I rise from my morning reading, grim-faced and resolute, I propel myself to it for another bout of what I call my daily mortification of the flesh.

Now a concomitant torture of physical exercise, most of us would agree, is the boredom a relief from which it is all but impossible to find. Iron-willed folk like Senator William Proxmire can, while jogging to work, concentrate on ways to pare down the military budget. John C. Calhoun, it is recorded, went from plowing his field to transcribing at his desk, as fast as he could write it out, the speech he had composed while working the soil.

All I ever managed on those few occasions when I jogged, was to concentrate on what a miserable form of self-punishment jogging is. But with the indoor bicycle, I reasoned, I might achieve distraction by watching television. Which is how it came to be that some time after nine on a recent morning I found myself listening for six and one-half minutes, that is to say, the time required for three miles of indoor bicycling at approximately 27 mph, the resistance spring set to medium-high, to a lady called Pat Collins, interviewing Eartha Kitt on the subject (I gather) of a book by Miss Kitt.

I arrived some time after Miss Kitt began answering Miss Collins' question, and it turns out, one gathers, that Miss Kitt is continually indignant at Lyndon Johnson's indignation over an episode in 1968. I dimly remember it, but the ladies refreshed my recollection (as the lawyers put it), and what happened was that at a White House reception, suddenly Miss Kitt decided to give a speech denouncing Lyndon Johnson for his Vietnam policies. Thereafter, it appears, she lost a lot of business — hotels ceased booking her, that kind of thing.

Collins: "Would you do it again, under the circumstances?"

Kitt: "Yes, I would. I believe that I was expressing my right of protest."

There is, of course, no "right" to accept an invitation to the White House, seize the mike once there, and deliver a lecture on the superiority of your views on foreign policy over against those of your host. Perhaps Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas didn't hire her to sing for fear that Miss Kitt might decide to bring along her right to protest, and deliver a speech to her audience rather than, say Mood Indigo, or whatever she sings.

Well, it turns out — says Miss Kitt — that Johnson ordered the FBI and the CIA to investigate her, and they did, and compiled a dossier on her which, said Kitt, among other things reported that in the description of one informer she was a "sadistic nymphomaniac."

Kitt and Collins both laughed, and Collins said it's funny how much emphasis the FBI and the CIA put on sex lives. "Could it be because they don't have any?"

The girls giggled, but didn't appear to take comfort from the corollary, which is that if it is so, future generations of Americans will be spared Sons of FBI and CIA. At that moment, my milometer hit the three-mile mark, so this story has to end.

Dear Boris: How Could You?

To: Boris Onischenko
Soviet Fencer
Moscow, U.S.S.R. (or Siberia)

Dear Boris,

You can imagine how shocked I was to read in the newspapers last week that you were caught cheating in the fencing competition at the Olympics in Montreal last week.

How could you do it, Boris? How could you rig your epee electrically so you would be given credit for touching your opponent when you were actually stabbing thin air? What possessed you to throw away a gold medal and a promising career by wiring your sword on AC when the rules called for you to be on DC?

Your action has caused terrible anguish here in American because no one in his wildest dreams could ever imagine a Russian resorting to tricks to win an athletic competition. But the ramifications go far beyond sports. Boris, do you know what you've done by your action? You've sown seeds of distrust and despair.

There are some people in this country who feel that because of your sword, we can no longer trust the Soviets on SALT and disarmament. At this very moment, as I write to you, Henry Kissinger is sitting in his State Department office saying to himself, "If they're wiring their epees illegally, what are they doing with their MIRV missiles?"

Over at the Pentagon generals and admirals are gathered in the hallways saying to each other, "Is this the Soviet Union we always knew and believed?"

And on houseboats all over the Potomac, congressmen and senators are saying to their secretaries, "Honey, you and I are going to have to take another peek at détente."

Yes, Boris, when you plugged in your epee last week, you sent an electric shock felt round the world. Every country is asking itself, "How many Onischenkos are there in the Soviet Union waiting to fence with us with a phony sword?" In the United Nations, the Third World powers are asking, "Can we vote with a country that condones bad wiring up its athlete's sleeve?"

I know you must have an explanation for what you've done. They certainly didn't teach you cheating at the Karl Marx Elementary School in Kiev. And God knows your Communist teachers never taught it at the First of May High School in Leningrad. And certainly they had an honor code at Engels Military Academy in Smolensk. So the idea must have come to you from some other sources.

Perhaps you had a coach who told you, "Winning is everything," or a mother who said to you in Russian, "Nice guys finish last."

It's not for me to conjecture where you picked up your bad habits, Boris. All I can tell you is that we Americans must now face up to the facts of life and insist on safeguards we never dreamed of before. These include on-site inspection of all your nuclear warheads, a renegotiation of any future wheat deals and a new look at your intentions in the Middle East.

We would never have thought of these things had we not been witness to your deceit in Canada.

I'm sorry I had to lay it on the line, Boris, but I thought you'd rather hear it from me than from one of your own people. We Americans are trusting souls. But we can be pushed just so far. When we see a fencing match on television and lights flashing when no one has been touched, even we know there is something rotten in Montreal.

I don't know how you can redeem yourself. If you were Japanese, I'd suggest you put on a ceremonial robe, remove the cotton tip and fall on your epee.

But since you're a Russian, you're going to have to figure out some other way of reclaiming your honor. Perhaps you can find yourself a good honest electrician in Moscow and get yourself rewired in time for the 1980 Olympics. I hope so, for your sake as well as ours.

Have a nice day.
Your friend,
A.P.

The Real Patrick Moynihan

WASHINGTON — The quixotic Daniel Patrick Moynihan, despite his cherubic cheeks and angelic blue eyes, still has the roguish look of an oversized Irish leprechaun.

There is mischief behind the blissful eyes, pugnaciousness behind the professorial manner. He came out of the sweltering New York City slum known as Hell's Kitchen, graduated cum laude from Tufts and taught at Harvard. There is a vestige of both environments in Moynihan today.

He made a national name for himself in the White House as Richard Nixon's resident Democrat. Now Moynihan is in full pursuit of a seat in the Senate.

He was in constant hot water while he served Nixon. Moynihan's statement that blacks should be treated with "benign neglect," for example, raised a howl from Harlem to Watts. But if his lack of tact aggravated the grim Nixon crowd, he shrugged off their criticisms with a fast quip and a bit o'blarney.

President Ford appointed Moynihan to be his United Nations ambassador. The irrepressible Irishman lasted only eight months. His trigger-tongue remarks, accusing just about the entire Third World of anti-Semitism, created an uproar around the world.

Moynihan's plunge into elective politics hasn't softened his abrasive nature nor silenced his blunt tongue. We intercepted him at the Democratic convention to ask whether he expected Jimmy Carter to campaign for him. "Presidents do not campaign for senators," Moynihan said, "senators campaign for Presidents."

He was even more testy with a young interviewer from the New York Public Interest Research Group. We have a tape of the unpublished interview, which reveals Moynihan in full flamboyance.

He looked over the prepared questions with an imperious eye and characterized them as "something you would get in a freshman course in comparative government in a not very good community college."

Asked what U.S. foreign policy should be toward the white regimes of Rhodesia and South Africa, he grumped: "That's not a good question ... It's just not a good question." Then he added crisply: "What do you mean, 'What should be our foreign policy?' ... You're talking to a man who has been an ambassador three times. Do you want a five-word answer?"

Which energy source, he was asked later, should be given first priority. "Don't be ridiculous. Don't be ridiculous," he snapped. "You're talking about the nature of the 20th-century economy."

Then he turned on the interviewer, Chris Aidun, a college senior. "What are you studying?" demanded Moynihan.

"Economics," said Aidun.

"Economics," mimicked the Irishman.

"You are not yet an economist. Please don't ask ridiculous questions." Moments later, he recommended that the interviewer read a book entitled "On Equality of Educational Opportunity," which Moynihan happened to coauthor. "It's the definitive work on the subject," he said immodestly.

Which programs would he support, asked Aidun, to improve the conditions of the elderly?

"Of the elderly? To improve their condition?" echoed Moynihan. "In what respect, make them younger?"

He added impatiently: "I don't understand how we can improve the condition of the elderly. That's a meaningless sentence. If you can't ask a meaningful question, don't ask at all."

There was another question about his "greatest weakness," as he saw it. Probably, he said, "an indisposition to answer such questions."

Footnote: In fairness to the feisty Moynihan, he is not really cavalier about the issues. He has taken staunch stands in favor of human rights, full employment, national health insurance and family assistance to the impoverished.

Moynihan explained to us that he had been abrupt with the interviewer because he seemed to want simple answers to complex questions. "This undergraduate came to me and he brought the professor out in me," said Moynihan. He wanted to impress upon the young man that he couldn't give yes-or-no answers.

GOOD NEIGHBORS? Somewhere between Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the bureaucrats who handle the diplomatic routines, our good neighbor policy toward Latin America often gets lost in the paperwork.

At the same time Kissinger was scattering flower petals around South America, for example, the bureaucrats in the backrooms were raising obstacles to keep Latin American visitors out of the country.

The ambassador from Ecuador, Jose C. Cardenas, became so frustrated that he dispatched a formal letter of protest to the State Dept. The letter charged that the United States had "systematically" denied visas to Ecuadorian citizens.

When we inquired about the letter at the Ecuadorian embassy, a spokesman at first issued a diplomatic denial. But the forthright ambassador later acknowledged that a protest was lodged several weeks ago.

Cardenas told us applications to visit America have been rejected "even in cases of petitioners who want to travel to this country for reasons of health or to attend to business." The ambassador added that many of the applicants are "of renowned moral and economic solvency."

Other Ecuadorian citizens, he said, had been required to post bonds as high as $9,000 before they are admitted.

From the State Dept., we got a typical bureaucratic response.

"The law treats all applicants for visas as having the intention of immigrating to this country unless they establish that they simply want to visit," said a spokesman. "It places the burden of proof on the applicant."

"Memories...Memories" relived through music.

Concert in the Park

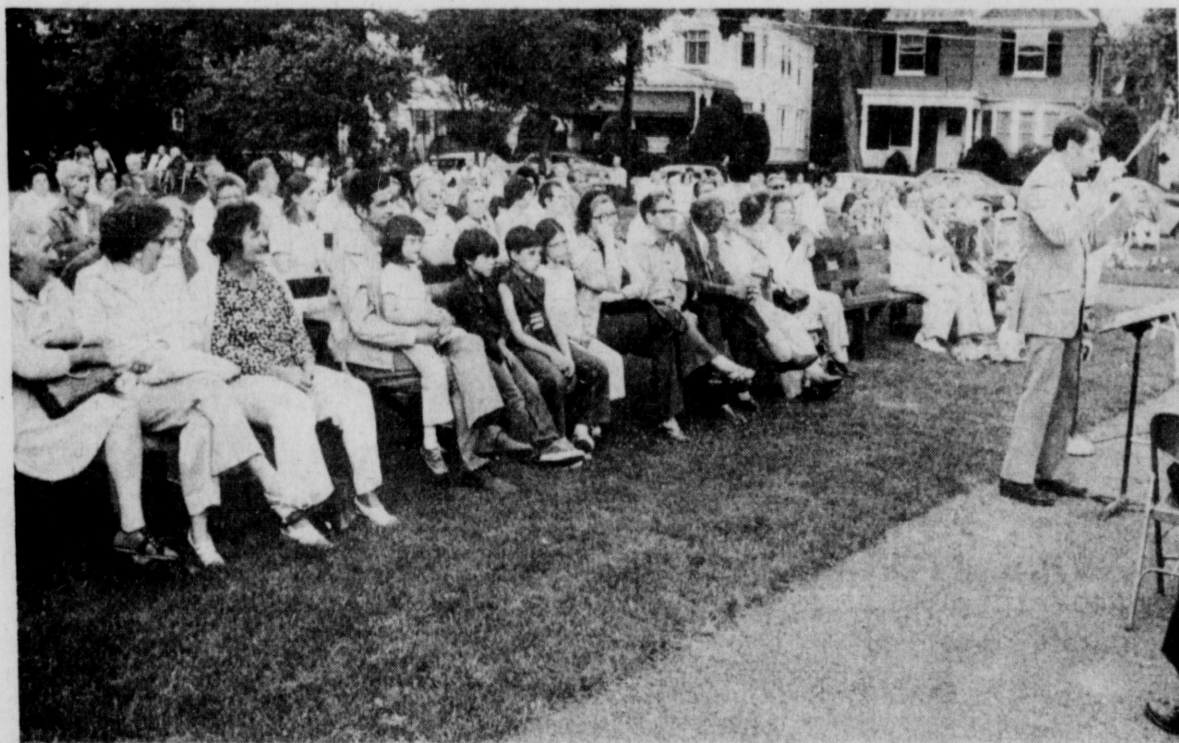

KINGSTON—Band concert night this week only will be Thursday, 7:30 o'clock, at the Academy Green Park. The weekly program is delayed one night this week because of the Children's Parade scheduled for Wednesday by the Kingston Recreation Department.

The programs usually given at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday nights is sponsored by the City of Kingston and the American Federation of Musicians Performance Trust Fund Local 215. The band, conducted by Lee Herrington, is composed of about 40 playing members from the Musicians Union Local 215, all of whom reside in the Kingston area.

The audiences this summer have been increasing each week. Benches are provided and many bring their own lawn chairs.

Marches on Thursday's program will include Sousa's "Semper Fidelis", the Spanish march, "Amaprito Roco," "Barnum and Bailey's Favorite" by K. L. King; and many more including the overture to "Die Meistersinger" by Wagner; "Birth of the Blues" by Henderson.

This week will mark the half way program, the fifth in the series of 10 this summer.

Conductor Lee Herrington offers a soothing end to a music-lover's day.

Life

Trumpeter Myron Rossi fills the air with sweet sounds.

Reflections of surroundings are mirrored in this musician's sparkling tuba. Band concert night at Academy Green this week is set for Thursday instead of the usual Wednesday night due to tomorrow's Children's Parade.

SUNY at Paltz Receives Gifts

NEW PALTZ—The music department at the State University College has received two major gifts: a record collection and an anthology of music.

The Rockefeller Foundation has given the college a 100-record collection of American music now being produced by the Recorded Anthology of American Music. This gift will trace the social and cultural history of the United States through its music. American music in all idioms and from all periods will be represented. Each record in the series, which will be distributed during the next two and a half years, is accompanied by extensive multipagined liner notes of selected discographies and bibliographies guiding the listener to further in-depth exploration. The college has received the first ten records of the series.

Mrs. Faye LeFevre, an alumna, 30 Plattekill Ave., New Paltz has donated eight volumes of the International Library of Music. Commenting on Mrs. LeFevre's gift, Dr. O. Lincoln Igou, chairman of the Department of Music, said, "the collection is a truly remarkable one and does indeed represent an entire history of compositions for the last 300 years and more. For now, both the record collection and books are located at the music department.

Game's Improving Since She's Using Tennis Pro Tricks

So many people have been asking me if I am playing better tennis this year. Mainly, they have been the people who played me last year.

I am happy to report that although my form is much the same, I have picked up a few tricks of the court that I have seen professionals use, which is bound to improve my game.

I have finally mastered what to do with the second tennis ball. Having small hands, I was becoming terribly self-conscious about keeping it in a can in the car while I served the first one. I noted some women tucked the second ball just inside the elastic leg of their tennis panties. I tried, but found the space already occupied by a leg. Now I simply drop the second ball down my cleavage, giving me a chest that often stuns my opponent throughout an entire set.

Next, I have learned how to stall, thus throwing my entire opponent's game off. It's called the old tie-the-shoe-trick. When your opponent is ready to serve, simply drop to your knees, untie your shoe, rearrange its tongue, and tie it again. Baseball players use the old stall all the time. (Cincinnati Reds pitcher Pat Zachry recently swallowed his chewing tobacco and threw up against a dugout wall. I haven't mastered at what hour

I can throw up. Sometimes, it is during a return.)

Another play is the rearrange-the-strings number. Never take the rap for a bad return or no return. Whenever you hit a ball into the net or miss it entirely, bring the game to a grinding halt by checking the strings of your racket, spending sometimes as much as five minutes separating them and testing their strength. This absolves you of any of the responsibility for a bad shot.

Forget all you have been told about concentration. It is overrated. Often, when there is time during one of my lobs, I yell across the net, "Your zipper is open," and have not only been ignored, but soundly punished for my good deed.

Probably my greatest accomplishment this year has been my skill at learning to play the game called, "Run Around the Backhand."

Early in my tennis career, I used to think when a ball landed to the left of me I had to use my backhand to return it. I have since learned that anything is better, including straddling a 15-foot cyclone fence.

No doubt about it — every day in every way, my game grows stronger. I saw one enthusiast the other day playing with his racket 'out of the press. I'll have to try that.

DEAR ABBY

Wife Disapproves of Boss-Secretary Lunches

DEAR ABBY: Your viewpoint and that of other executives' wives on the subject of husbands taking their secretaries out to lunch would be appreciated. The claim that there's nothing "wrong" in it makes me bristle. I, disapprove, but am almost ashamed to say so because I am called absurd, insecure and just plain childish.

I am married to an executive and this is my problem. I was formerly a secretary (not his) and never found "business" to be the topic of conversation when my boss invited me to lunch.

I wonder what the silent league—the secretaries' husbands—have to say?—

NOBODY'S FOOL

DEAR NOBODY'S: Lunching with one's boss is not in itself morally wrong, but the attendant gossip can do much harm. Circumstances differ, however, and one must consider the boss, the secretary, the place and the frequency of such dates. And who's feeding whom what.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who is a wonderful person, but my husband thinks her husband is a terrible bore. This friend has had us to her home for dinner several times, and I've been able to persuade my husband to go. But now he says, "No more!"

I have had this couple for dinner, and although my husband wasn't rude, he didn't urge them to stay longer when they said, rather early and halfheartedly, "I think we'd better be going."

Abby, I have entertained some of my husband's business friends, many of whom are bores, but I don't complain. So is it asking too much of him to do the same for me once in a while?

Why should we wives do all the giving?—EQUAL PARTNER

DEAR PARTNER: You shouldn't. And many don't. Why don't you play "let's make a deal"? As an equal partner, your husband should do as much for you as you do for him.

DEAR ABBY: The man signed DISGUSTED, who was wondering how to signal a waitress in a restaurant, should use a little common sense.

I've been a waitress for five years, and the first thing I do is let the customer know my name. If the waitress doesn't do this, the customer should ask. It saves a lot of confusion when he needs something if he knows exactly who waited on him.

I don't know any waitress who likes to be called "Hey, Girlie," or have someone wistle or snap his fingers to summon her.

Thanks for hearing our side.—C. S.

DEAR C. S.: Not all waitresses want to be addressed by their names. Some feel it is too familiar. So unless the waitress is wearing a name pin, or introduces herself, I recommend calling her either "Miss" or "Waitress."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Rehearsal Tonight for Summer Chorus Concert

KINGSTON—Church of the Comforter, Wynkoop Place, is active every Tuesday evening as Onteora Summer Chorus busily sings and hums its way to an exciting concert scheduled for presentation Aug. 25, 8:15 p.m., in the J. Watson Bailey Junior High School.

Donald W. Brown of Newburgh conducts the chorus in his second season with the group. Highly regarded in music circles, he is co-accompanist with the touring group, "Yankee Male Chorus," was accompanist for the "Amphion Men's Glee Club" from 1956 to 1968 and became their conductor in 1969. He was director of music at the Stewart Air Force Base Chapel 1964 through 1969. He takes particular pride in remembering 1950 when he accompanied professional violinist, Emanuel Kornbluth.

Brown who lives in Newburgh with his wife, the former Jeanne Johnston and their six children, has also served in the Newburgh area as organist for St. John's Methodist and Dutch Reformed Churches and as organist-director for the Church of the Good Shepherd, Westminister Church, and since 1970 at Meadow Hill Reformed Church. In true community spirit, he was director of music for the Cornwall Fourth of July Pageant. He studied music at Ithaca College in preparation for his career but his vocation has been with the New York State Department of Transportation for 26 years as a Right's of Way Negotiator.

Any interested persons who wish to sing with the chorus should attend the rehearsal tonight, July 27, the last night for new member registration. Rehearsal is from 8 to 10 p.m. in the Church of the Comforter Hall, Wynkoop Place, just off Foxhall Avenue, Kingston.

Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Alan W. Sparks.

Woodstock Library Fair This Friday

WOODSTOCK—The Woodstock Library Fair, one of Woodstock's most traditional and exciting events, will be held this year, Friday, July 30, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Library grounds.

According to Kenneth Osterhoudt, chairman, and Rose Koplovitz, co-chairperson, this year's fair plans call for more than ever before. As usual, there will be book and rummage sales with large selections.

The annual "Great Expectations," will include awards of $300 in groceries from Mower's; 250 gallons of gasoline from Bob's Gulf Station; 10-speed bike and a TV set. In addition to these major awards, there will be others for presentation every 20 minutes during the day.

Another highlight will be Kitty Montgomery's Children's Midway with games and booths and food. The fair also features booths covering a wide range of items from cakes to plants, to aprons palm reading and astrology.

United Players Offering Two One-act Plays On Dinner-Theatre Program

KINGSTON—The new area repertory theatre company, The United Players, is preparing for the dinner-theatre program at Colonnade Restaurant this Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with two one-act plays: Chekhov's "A Marriage Proposal," and Jay Folb's "Don't Look Down." Dinner will be served at 7 with curtain time at 8:30 p.m.

The theatre company consists of a nucleus of five people: Timothy de Illy, producer and actor; Christopher George Markunas, technical director and actor; Melanie Sue Burlingham, properties mistress and actress; Brian Hampshire, lighting engineer and stage manager; Barrett Douglas Ford, director.

As producer, de Illy is the main force behind the company. He studied theatre arts under the expertise of Joseph Happeny at Kingston High School, starred in the Maroon Theatre Company production of "You Can't Take It With You" and in several productions at Ulster County Community College. He recently performed the role of "Everyman" at Stratford, Ct., and has performed with the Marblatown Artist's Association and Coach House Players. de Illy studied make-up techniques with Bob Kelly whose cosmetic firm manufactured all the wigs used in the movie "The Exorcist."

Markunas studied technical theatre at Temple University where he worked on such productions as "Indians," "Hamlet," "Salome," and "Country Wife." He also worked at the Hal Prince Theatre at the University of Pennsylvania on the production of "Three Penny Opera." He has worked with John Conklyn, New York Designer and has extensive acting background. He will be seen in two contrasting roles this week, as the old Russian landowner in the Chekov play and as a young rookie cop in "Don't Look Down."

Ms. Burlingham, leading lady for the plays is also the props mistress where her talent of restoring furniture and upholstery is used. She has played several roles in Ulster County Community College productions.

Hampshire has worked as stage manager for several melodramas. He was assistant director and stage manager to the "Boob Tube Review." Locally he appeared in the '75 UCCC Summer Theatre production of "Music Man."

Ford has studied Theatre Arts at Kingston High School for three years with Joseph Happeny. He has also appeared with the Marblatown

Artists Association; has performed in two Reader's Theatre productions; done technical work at Kingston High School and for the Ulster Youth Theatre; and has also studied make-up techniques with Bob Kelly and de Illy. He will be attending Yale University in the fall where he will study directing.

Reservations for the dinner-theatre evenings may be made at The Colonnade.

"Promenade All" Is Next Production at Playhouse

WOODSTOCK—The Woodstock Playhouse August production, "Promenade All!" was written by local playwright David V. Robison and ran on Broadway with Hume Cronyn, Eli Wallach, Anne Jackson and Richard Rackus during the spring of 1972. It has been produced widely in stock and won a Straw Hat Award as a best new play. It will start next week Wednesday, Aug. 4.

"Promenade All!" will follow "The Faun", a comedy satire on Victorian and Edwardian conventions which is currently on the Playhouse boards from now until Sunday, Aug. 1. Performances are nightly at 8:30 p.m. with Sunday curtain at 7 and matinees at 2:30 Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The dramatization of "The Emperor's New Clothes" performed by The Traveling Playhouse will be given at Woodstock Playhouse Saturday, July 31, 11 a.m. The story is based on the Hans Christian Anderson folk-tale and is intended for children up to mid-teens although adults seem to enjoy the play as much as youngsters. All seats are $1.75.

The Traveling Playhouse is a professional Actors Equity group of adults who transform favorite children's tales into reality on stage. Now beginning its 26th season, it has given many thousands of performances before a combined audience of millions of children. The company has travelled throughout the United States and its production of "Robin Hood" has been seen many times nationally on NBC-TV.

Next Monday night, Aug. 2, 8:30 p.m., Bill Vanaver and Livia Drapkin perform in a special concert, "The Coming Together Dance and Music Festival". These artists do a variety of things in one evening, a little bit of theatre, music and dance — but nothing among the ordinary. Their program will include a traditional man's dance from Azerbaijan, USSR, a medley of Irish music, a hornpipe clog dance and a medley of music from Crete. A highlight of the program will be the premiere of "Romp," choreography by Livia Drapkin, music by Bill Vanaver with additional musicians and dancers. "Romp" is a portion of a work-in-progress based on the Orpheus myth.

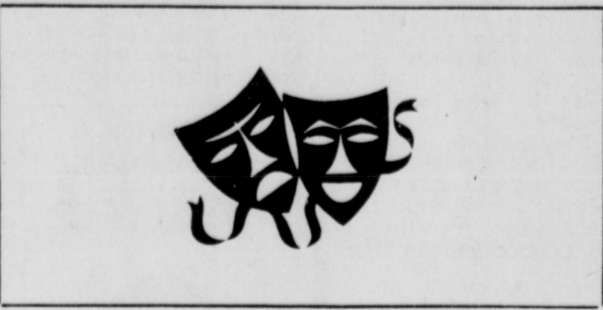

Saugerties Man's Play to Be Presented Wednesday at Arts Council Meeting

SAUGERTIES—From the time of the concept of the poet king and the philosopher king society at large has often questioned the pragmatism of these conceptual wizards.

"The Black Bag and the Circle," a one-act play by Paul Miller of Saugerties, deals with the artist's role as he sees himself as contrasted with that role as seen by society.

The allegory in verse was written several years ago, said Miller, "but has a new pertinency in Ulster County right now, especially since the art-the play."

The Council plans to have

informal play reading sessions at future meetings if the interest is generated.

The meeting, open to the public, will also concern itself with the Council's progress on the acquisition and restoration of the Old Saugerties Light-house at the mouth of the Esopus on the Hudson River. tists in the local area, particularly in Woodstock, seem to think that society owes a special debt to them. We hope that the performance will generate some interesting discussion on this subject, both at the meeting and afterwards."

The occasion of the play's performance will be the Saugerties Arts Council meeting at 8 p.m., July 28 at the Sawyer Savings Bank.

Martin Henderson of the Performing Arts of Woodstock, an actor well known to local audiences, will be featured in

Arnold Wesker's "Kitchen" Opens This Week

SARATOGA SPRINGS—The John Houseman Summer Theater season opens this week at the Performing Arts Festival with Arnold Wesker's "The Kitchen". Performances will continue July 28 to 30 at 8 p.m. and Saturday, July 31, 5 and 9 p.m. The Acting Company whose artistic director is John Houseman, will be seen in four other productions this summer. Shakespear's "Love's Labour's Lost" will be next week's offering.

New York City Ballet is in the final week of nightly performances ending Saturday evening, 8:15 p.m. with the new "Union Jack" and "Dances at a Gathering." The new "Fanfare" will be given with "Union Jack" Saturday at 2 p.m.

Sunday will mark the sixth appearance at the center of Liberace, who has virtually become an institution at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center. He will present his all-new show at 3 and 8:15 p.m. For the 1976 edition of his show, Liberace will showcase the talents of "Miss Louisiana", Debby Robert, a Miss America finalist who also won acclaim at the Ball of the Silver Rose in Vienna. A versatile singer, Debby Robert's vocal styles range from the operatic to blues.

Matinees Added for Christie Play

HYDE PARK — Two matinees have been added for the Agatha Christie play "Toward Zero," at the Hyde Park Playhouse in response to the overwhelming enthusiasm for the production. Matinees will be Wednesday, July 28 and Saturday, July 31, 2:30 p.m. Both performances have been budget priced at $3.95. In addition an extra evening performance has been added for tonight, 8:30 p.m.

The playhouse has also announced that a family musical "Bye Bye Birdie" will replace "Desire Under the Elms" as the fourth major attraction of the summer. "Bye Bye Birdie" will run August 4 through 8 and Aug. 10 through 15, at 8:30 p.m. and matinees on Aug. 7, 11 and 14.

The Hyde Park Playhouse is located on Rte. 9 opposite the Vanderbilt Estate.

Talent Contest Planned for Fair

NEW PALTZ — A local talent contest is being sponsored by the Ulster County Fair as part of the New York State Fair Talent Search. The local contest will be held Sunday, Aug. 15 at Ulster County Fair Grounds, with the winner performing at the New York State Fair later this year.

Contestants must be 16 years of age or more and non-professional. Each act will be limited to five minutes and may be comprised of solos, duets, trios, quartets and instrumental groups. Rock groups, bands, blue grass and country western groups are eligible for competition in a variety showcase.

Prizes of from $100 to $1,500 can be won at the state level.

Entry forms may be secured from John Florsch, secretary-treasurer of the Ulster County Agricultural Society, 4 Boxwood Court, Saugerties. No entry fee is required. Applications must be submitted by Aug. 7.

Free Crafts Classes At Mountain Metals

KINGSTON—Mountain Metals, a non-profit crafts school in Kingston, is offering free crafts classes for area young people from eight to 20 years. The six week program is offered in conjunction with Ulster County and New York State Division for Youth and is fully insured. The courses begin Aug. 3. Individuals and school, church and youth groups will be welcome.

Free basket weaving course will be held every Tuesday for six weeks beginning Aug. 3. There will be morning, afternoon and evening classes. The course includes weaving a small reed container. Colonial and Indian weaving styles will also be taught. Basket weaving is open to young people from 8 to 20 years.

Free stained glass classes will be held every Thursday for six weeks beginning Aug. 7. There will be morning, afternoon and evening sessions. Students will be taught to cut glass, and solder small window or hanging objects using the copper foil method. All materials will be free in both courses. Stained glass is open to young people from 12 to 20 years old.

Further information and a full schedule of courses may be obtained from Mountain Metals, 3 Dunn St., Kingston, 12401.

Saugerties Defeats Kingston for County Legion Title

KINGSTON — It's on to the New York State District American Legion baseball tournament for Saugerties now that it has disposed of Kingston in the annual Ulster County championship series.

The Sawyers successfully completed a comeback in the best-of-three series Monday night at Dietz Stadium by rallying to down Kingston, 8-2, and earn a two-to-one triumph in games.

Tim Cole struck out 11 and hurled a four-hitter for Saugerties, which led by a run early in the contest, fell behind by a marker midway through it, then exploded off Kingston relief pitching for four runs in the fifth and three more in the sixth. And while Kingston couldn't deny the win for Saugerties, its players and fans were probably considering another of those mighty "ifs". In this case the "if" was what would have happened "if" starting pitcher Dave Loeffler hadn't have come up with a sore arm?

Loeffler had held Saugerties to a run and two hits through four innings. But when he wounded his wing, manager Ron Secreto was forced to go to the bullpen and the roof caved in. Whether Loeffler would have remained in control is something for the losers to mull until next year's series.

Saugerties broke the ice against Loeffler in the second when walks to Karl Lezette and Marc Becker and a wild pitch put men on second and third. Nick Malgieri then bounced into a fielder's choice, Lezette getting nabbed at the plate. But Loeffler then balked and Becker pranced across.

Kingston reached Cole for a pair in the fourth. Joe Augustine walked and stole second. Loeffler then rapped a single for one run and Joe Kelderhouse followed with a double for another tally. Cole firmly shut the door after that.

Bob Schlanger was on the mound for Kingston in the fifth after Loeffler had to be removed due to his injury. With two out and Jay Harris on base, Schlanger walked. That forced Secreto to make a move and he decided to intentionally walk Lezette, filling the sacks.

The strategy failed as Becker unloaded a base-clearing triple for three runs. Malgieri followed with an RBI double.

Schlanger was in trouble again in the sixth as a walk to Joe Maines, a single by Jim Hackett and an infield hit by Harris refilled the bases.

Augustine came in to pitch for Kingston and was greeted by a two-run single by Steve Martin. An error gave Saugerties its final run.

The date and site of Saugerties' first District game has not been announced.

Kingston sees action this weekend in the Albany County All-Star tournament at Blecker Stadium. That event begins Saturday at 8 p.m.

Buildup Finished, So Are Russians

MONTREAL (UPI) — Today was supposed to be the day the United States avenged its national honor, the day it got its revenge with Russia.

For four long years, ever since that disputed decision in Munich, the Americans talked about, planned for and reveled in the triumph that would be theirs.

Well, the big buildup is finished and so are the Russians. Only the gold and the glory remain and, frankly, that's all the Americans care about.

The long-awaited dream of a rematch between the U.S. and Russia got punctured Monday when the Soviet Union dropped an 89-84 decision to Yugoslavia in an afternoon semifinal before the Yanks went out at night to overwhelm host Canada, 95-77.

Thus, it will be the United States vs. Yugoslavia for the gold medal tonight in a game starting at 9 p.m. EDT. The two teams already have met once during the Olympic tournament, the Yanks winning by 19 points.

"Maybe we were looking forward to playing the Russians," said center Mitch Kupchak of North Carolina, "but that's over now. They lost and Yugoslavia played a great game. I'm just happy to be in the final.

"It's been built up as the United States and Russia, but sometimes it doesn't work out the way the media wants it."

Indiana teammates Scott May and Quinn Buckner, who combined for 34 points in the easy victory over Canada, agreed with Kupchak's assessment.

"I don't know about being disappointed," said Buckner. "I'm just happy to be playing for the gold medal. The Russians lost, and that's the facts of life. I don't care who we're playing, I just want to go out and play basketball."

Added May, "We started off in May expecting we'd play tomorrow for the gold medal. Like Quinn says, as long as we're going to be in there, I'm not disappointed about the Russians."

At Munich in 1972, the Soviet Union won the gold medal with a highly-disputed 51-50 victory over the Americans.

It was a banner day all around for the U.S. basketball troops Monday since the women's team came away with a surprising silver medal by beating Czechoslovakia, 83-67, behind 17 points from Luisa Harris. This was the first time women's basketball has been included on the Olympic program, and the Americans never before had finished higher than eighth in international competition.

The Soviet Union, which hasn't lost a game in three years, won the gold medal.

Trailing 53-52 with 11:18 left in the game, the U.S. scored 15 consecutive points and went on to win for the third time in five outings.

"We were so high in the second half I thought we were going to fly through the roof," said Mary Anne O'Connor. "We got hungry for the ball and after a few of our earlier games we had things to show people."

Drawing added attention to today's men's championship is the fact that there is no activity in track and field and little competition in other sports.

For the American athletes, a rest day might be just the right prescription after their disastrous showing on the track Monday. Six gold medals were awarded, and none went to the U.S.

After the first four days and 15 events, 10 of them in the men's competition, the United States has just two golds. This is as good a reason as any why the Americans are only third in the gold medal standing with 21. Both the Soviet Union and East Germany have 27 each.

Overall, Russia has a total of 73 medals, the U.S. 61 and East Germany 58.

The biggest disappointment Monday was the failure of Dave Roberts, the world record holder at 18 feet, 8-1/2 inches, to win the pole vault, and he just may have outguessed himself out of the gold when he passed up 18-2-1/2 to try for 18-4-1/2.

"I'm really not that disappointed," said Roberts, a University of Florida medical student who had to settle for the bronze medal behind winner Tadeusz Slusarski of Poland, who had a leap of 18-0-1/2. "Considering the conditions, all three of the medal winners did extremely well. But I'm not making any excuses because the conditions affected everybody equally."

"I figured I could go 5.60 meters (18-4-1/2) just as easily as I could do 5.55 (18-2-1/2). I didn't know it was going to rain, though."

The only other medals taken by the U.S. on the track came in the 200 meters, where Don Quarrie of Jamaica beat out American youngsters Millard Hampton and Dwayne Evans. Quarrie won in 20.23 seconds while Hampton and Evans were timed in 20.29 and 20.43 respectively.

"I thought I had a chance," said Hampton, the California junior college sprint champion from San Jose City College. "But Don was just too strong on the turn."

In the other track finals, Hungary's Miklos Nemeth set a world record of 310 feet, 4-1/2 inches in winning the men's javelin; newlywed Lasse Viren of Finland successfully defended his 10,000 meter championship in 27 minutes, 40.38 seconds; Tatiana Kazanki of Russia won the women's 800 meters in a world record time of 1:54.94, and East Germany's Siegrun Siegl won the women's pentathlon with 4,745 points.

The United States qualified nine boxers for the quarterfinals with three more victories Monday night. Heavyweight John Tate of Knoxville, Tenn., and light heavyweight Leon Spinks of St. Louis registered decisions while Spinks' brother, Michael, a middleweight, advanced on a forfeit.

Despite their 112-93 victory over Yugoslavia last week, the American basketball team isn't taking tonight's final lightly.

"The psychological edge is with them," reckoned U.S. Coach Dean Smith. "If we were playing the Soviet Union, then the psychological edge would be with us. Many people think the psychological edge is more important than the players."

"They're the biggest team we've faced, and they played a super basketball game against Russia. We've scouted them over the past year and they're a very sound team. Each person knows exactly what his role is."

Smith pointed out that despite the big margin of victory in that first meeting, the U.S. led by only five points with about five minutes to play before Yugoslavia went cold.

"The thing that concerns me is their physical size inside," said May. "Their front line is a lot bigger than ours. We have to move 'em around and play a controlled offense."

"I think if we can control their big men inside and make them take the long shot, we'll do alright."

Meantime, a film Smith showed the team may have been for naught.

"Last Saturday before the game against Italy I showed them the film of the game against Russia in Munich," the coach said. "I know when I saw it on TV I got goosebumps and wanted to go out and play. I thought maybe they'd feel the same way."

Now we'll never know.

Women's Coach Eyes Gold Medal in 1980

MONTREAL (UPI) — Women's basketball was included at the Olympics for the first time this year and the United States entered the competition thinking it might have a shot at a gold medal.

The Americans had to settle for a silver, but next time, American coach Billie Jean Moore figures things will be different.

"We have made great strides in women's athletics in the past three years or so," said Moore, coach at California-Fullerton. "If things continue, by 1980 we should be the favorites to win the Olympic gold."

That is pretty high talk for the Americans. The Soviet Union has a lock on women's basketball right now. They have not lost a game in nearly four years and have an 18-year-old, 7-2 center, Iuliya Semenova, who dominates the game, which was obvious when the Russians closed out the women's competition Monday night with a 98-75 win over Japan, giving them a 5-0 record. Semenova played only the first half and had 20 points.

The United States, which had a 3-2 record along with Bulgaria, was awarded the silver medal after its 83-67 win over Czechoslovakia Monday because it beat Bulgaria, 95-79, earlier in the tournament.

"Right now, I'd say the gap between the United States and Russia is about 10 inches," said Moore, referring to the fact the American women centers are 6-2 or 6-

3. "But we don't need to have a 7-footer to be able to play with anybody."

"If we can get someone who is 6-5 or 6-6 and plays like Lucy (Harris) or Sue (Dunkel, the American centers) we can beat anyone. And in the next few years I think you will find some taller girls coming around."

The second-place finish was a milestone for women's basketball in America. Before the Olympics, the Americans had never finished higher than eighth in international competition and there were those who had their doubts about the ability of the United States to compete at the Olympic level.

"Even before we clinched a medal we had made reservations for a party Monday afternoon," said Moore. "We felt they deserved something just because they qualified. There were a lot of people who doubted if we could make it here and to walk away being second is not bad at our stage."

The American women even admitted they had some doubts after their first game in the tournament. They opened by losing to Japan, 84-71.

"After losing to Japan and then to Russia we thought we had shot our chances of being first or second," said Moore. "But the way things worked out we were in good shape."

"We came here thinking we had an outside shot at a gold medal but we would have been awful disappointed if we did not at least take home the silver."

Four Years Ago...

MONTREAL (UPI) — It was on this day of the Summer Games in Munich four years ago that terror and death struck the Olympic Village.

What happened then — on Tuesday of the second week of the 20th Olympiad — turned today's Montreal Olympic spectacular into a grim security exercise, directed by concerned men determined to prevent another slaughter of innocent athletes for political purposes.

The reason for their concern: the latest report of international terrorist movement—from West Germany via Australia to Canada's west coast, and then on to Montreal and the Olympic Games.

"So far, this is still a rumor and we expect it will turn out the same way as the rest of the rumors," an Olympic security spokesman told UPI late Monday night. "But you can safely assume that all rumors are properly checked out."

On this day of the Olympics in 1972, Arab terrorists launched the raid that eventually killed 11 Israeli athletes, a West German policeman and five of the infiltrators.

Competition was eventually suspended for 24 hours, but the Games never were the same.

Today there are several thousand fully armed Canadian troops, city and provincial police and private security officers guarding the Olympic Village, watching the gates at the Olympic Stadium, scrutinizing spectators at basketball games.

"We are not taking particular extra precautions today because it is the anniversary," the security spokesman said. "We're just doing our job as usual, keeping our eyes open and hoping that nothing will happen."

During the past several months Canadian newspapers have reported many rumors of terrorist groups heading for Montreal. Even the notorious "Jackal" was said to have been in the city earlier this year, perhaps to case the Olympic site for an attack. But nobody actually reported that he was spotted by a policeman.

Arab terrorists were not the only source of concern for security officers. There were also Quebec separatists who might threaten members of the British royal family during their visit, Irish nationalists anxious for an international platform, dissidents from around the world ready to use violence for political purposes.

But the spotlight was on the potential Arab problem and tightly-guarded Israeli athletes.

Their plight was recognized by Israeli Chief of Mission Samuel Lalkin, who held the same position in the tragic days at Munich.

"We do not live in fear," Lalkin said, "But we are always prepared for any eventuality that comes up."

Orioles Aren't Giving Up

By UPI

John Wayne would be proud of the "true grit" the Baltimore Orioles are displaying in the face of the New York Yankees' 13½ game lead in the American League East.

Leads of that size at this time of the season have been overcome a few times in the past but more often than not the leading team has padded it's lead. The Yankees, therefore, appear to be a shoo-in but the Orioles are refusing to give up. The Orioles' veterans remember, for one thing, that only two years ago they made up a 7½ game deficit after Labor Day and won the division title.

"I'm still optimistic and until we're mathematically eliminated, I'll be convinced that we're in the running," said Bobby Grich Monday night after the Orioles defeated Jim Hunter and the Yankees 3-1. "Strange things happen in baseball and you only have to look at all the other teams that managed to fall from what looked like strong positions once in the league to see that."

"And in beating their best pitcher, which is what I consider Hunter, is the best possible way to open a series against them," Grich added. "In other words, I don't think our chances of catching New York are impossible."

Steinbrenner Is Not Named

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department has taken court action to recover damages from the American Ship Building Co. for allegedly charging illegal campaign contributions to government contractors.

The firm's board chairman, George M. Steinbrenner III, also is principal owner of the New York Yankees.

The company, in a statement issued at its Cleveland, Ohio, headquarters, pointed out that the action was filed against the company, and not Steinbrenner personally.

"Naturally, it's going to take a big streak on our part to cut into their lead," said Manager Earl Weaver. "But we play them 12 more times and we should feel confident should we do well in those games."

Ross Grimsley pitched a six-hitter for his third victory, Al Bumbry hit his fourth homer and Reggie Jackson hit a two-run double as the Orioles handed Hunter his ninth loss against 12 wins. Fred Stanley singled in the Yankees' run in the fifth inning.

Indians 9, Red Sox 4

Rico Carty drove in four runs with two doubles and Rick Manning homered for Cleveland, which dealt Boston its seventh loss in eight games since Don Zimmer replaced Darrell Johnson as manager. Tom Buskey received credit for the victory with five innings of one-run relief. The loss was Luis Tiant's ninth against 10 wins.

Rangers 3, Twins 0

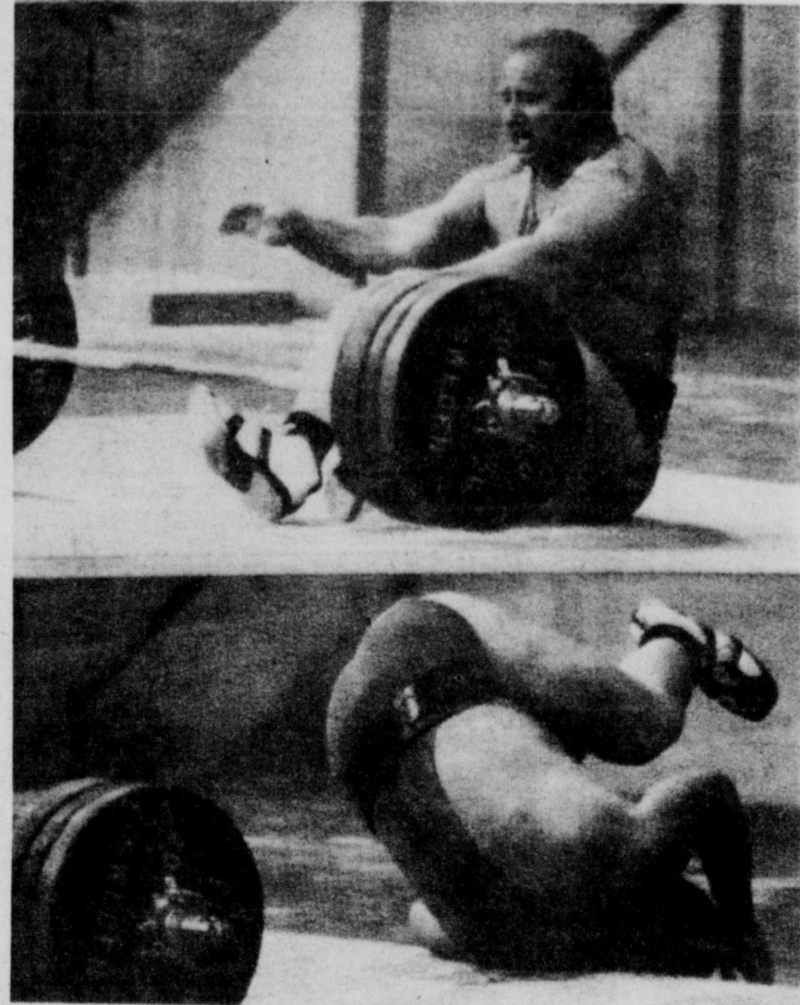

Bert Blyleven pitched a two-hitter and Toby Harrah homered for Texas. Blyleven struck out nine and walked one, allowing a scratch single to Steve Braun in the fourth and a single to Craig Kusick in the seventh. The homer was Harrah's ninth.

Royals 4, Angels 0

Al Fitzmorris pitched a six-hitter for his second shutout of the season and Amos Otis hit a two-run double, sparking Kansas City to its victory over Nolan Ryan and California. It was the 12th win for Fitzmorris, who struck out seven. Ryan struck out seven, increasing his major league leading total to 184, but lost his 13th decision.

A's 3, White Sox 1

Bill North singled, stole his 49th and 50th bases and scored the go-ahead run for Oakland on a single by Bert Campaneris. Paul Mitchell went 7-2-3 innings for his fourth straight victory with Rolie Fingers finishing up. Sal Bando hit his 20th homer for the A's.

Braves Breeze, 19-4

KINGSTON — The Kingston Braves brought their hitting clothes and the Marlboro Jets forgot their fielding togs.

That was the story Monday night at Dietz Stadium as the Braves crushed Marlboro, 19-4, in a Hudson Valley Rookie League second round game.

Kingston rapped off 17 hits in the contest including three apiece by Rich Koegel, Larry Panella and Tom Gallo. The Jets did their part, bobbling the ball seven times.

The recipient of all the good fortune was Kingston starter and winner Bruce Hurley, who had a relatively easy five-hitter made a bit more difficult by four walks and three Kingston miscues.

Kingston opened with four runs in the first, followed with five in the second, added two in the third, then five more in the fourth. After a scoreless fifth, the Braves finished up with three in the sixth.

The score was 19-1 until Marlboro managed three runs in the seventh.

Panella drove in four runs in the game, Koegel and Duane Carey had three RBIs apiece and Gallo and Tom Whitaker each sent in two men.

Kingston took a page from the Roadrunner's book by stealing eight bases, four by player-manager Gerry Hawkins and two by Bob Marz. Kris Kilroy and Koegel swiped the other two bags.

Oddly, the only extra base hit in the game was Koegel's double.

Starter Harry Collier took the defeat for the Jets, who are struggling through a 2-20 season.

Kingston is now 19-2 on the year, 11-1 in the first round, 8-1 in the second.

The Braves entertain New Paltz Thursday night at 8 p.m. at Dietz.

Norman Won't Complain

By UPI

One by one, baseball observers show only the highest regard for Cincinnati's manager Sparky Anderson. So it comes as a rude awakening that Anderson calls himself a "dummy" when he thinks of how he's treated Fred Norman.

Norman, who won 12 of 16 decisions last year, was removed from the starting rotation after he being bombed in the fourth game of the season on April 13 against New York. He didn't start another game for two months.

Since being reinstated to the rotation, however, Norman has won nine games and lost only one, the latest victory coming when he tossed a seven-hitter and lowered his league-leading ERA to 2.38 Monday night in Cincinnati's 9-3 romp over the Giants.

Sparky Anderson didn't exactly praise himself for lifting Norman from the rotation earlier this season.

"The guy who didn't start him all that time was awful dumb," Anderson chuckled. "I won't mention any names but he's got a 10 on the back of his uniform." No, 10 happens to be Anderson's number. He laughed and added, "It's great to be known as a genius."

Fred Norman softly says he can't understand some of the decisions Sparky has made as manager but he's happy to be on the club and won't ever say anything bad or ask any questions.

"I won't complain. I'm just glad to be pitching the way I am and to help the ballclub."

Norman, who struck out six and walked three, improved his lifetime record at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium to 31-7 with the help of four hits apiece from George Foster and Dan Driessen. Pete Rose, bidding for his fourth National League batting title, had three hits.

The Reds scored twice in the first inning off John Montefusco, the first coming on Rose's third leadoff homer in the last seven games and ninth of the season.

The second of Driessen's four hits, a double, scored Ken Griffey in the third. Driessen, who drove in three runs, is batting over .300 and making aging slugger Tony Perez possible trade.

A double by Rose ignited a three-run fourth as the Reds touched Giants' reliever Mike Caldwell for five hits.

In other games, Philadelphia beat New York, 4-1, Montreal swept a doubleheader from Chicago, 2-1 and 3-1, Los Angeles stopped Atlanta 6-2 and Houston beat San Diego 7-0. Pittsburgh at St. Louis was rained out.

Phils 4, Mets 1

Dave Cash laced a triple to lead off the sixth and raced home on Larry Bowa's sacrifice fly as Philadelphia turned back New York for its 13th win in 17 decisions. Larry Christenson hurled the first six innings to record his ninth victory in 15 decisions but needed three innings relief help from Tug McGraw.

SPORT PARADE

Milton Richman,
UPI Sports Editor

MONTREAL (UPI) — They told him to get ready and even if they hadn't, he could sense it was almost time, that magic moment he had thought about over and over again since he first arrived here over a week ago.

In a couple of minutes or so now he'd be walking out of the dressing room for his first fight ever in the Olympics.

He didn't know his opponent's name and it didn't really matter. Someone had told him the name and he had forgotten it. All he knew about him, this opponent he was going to meet soon, was that he had more experience, a lot more, he was tougher than asphalt and he was Poland's European champ.

Standing there in the dressing room, big John Tate bowed his head and prayed, the same way he does before each of his fights.

He prayed everything would go right.

"...Oh, Lord, please don't let me mess up, please..."

Big John Tate wasn't asking so much for himself as he was for the people he was anxious to please. His mama, his coach, his friends back in West Memphis, Ark., and all the guys he works with driving a garbage truck in Knoxville—"they're all poor like me, but they're good people tryin' to make a living."

He wasn't forgetting his country either. Around the Olympic Village the past 10 days, he had evoked any number of comments in that eye-catching navy blue windbreaker of his with the letters on the back saying: "I LOVE AMERICA" — "BIG JOHN TATE."

Some felt he was trying to go the same road George Foreman did when Foreman paraded around the ring waving a pair of miniature American flags after winning the Olympic heavyweight title in Mexico City eight years ago. Big John Tate told everybody he wasn't trying to copy George Foreman or anybody else, he really does love the United States of America, and what was wrong with that?

Only a few more seconds remained now before the 6-foot-4, 225-pound Tate would have to climb up into the ring to meet Poland's rugged, hard-hitting Andrzej Biegalski, but he wasn't finished praying. So many different thoughts kept crowding into his mind.

John Tate remembered the time he was nine years old and some kids took his jelly sandwiches from him. He came home and told his mother and she asked him why he hadn't fought back?

"I don't like to fight," he said.

"You're going to learn to fight back if it's the last thing you do," she said.

Every day, nine-year-old John Tate would go out and take a beating. Two, in fact. When he'd come home, his mama would whip him, too, and it hurt. Eventually he learned how to fight.

Now he was going out to fight not only for himself, but for his country, and he felt he could use a little outside help.

"...I'm only a rookie in this sport, fightin' only 19 months. A whole lot of people don't expect me to do good here. They said I can't fight, but I think I can. I wanna win the gold medal. I would be so proud..."

Big John Tate suddenly found himself in the ring with the tall, business-like Biegalski and soon he was piling up points with punishing left hooks. A right to Biegalski's jaw staggered him. The Polish fighter took a standing eight-count in the second round, during which Tate bloodied his face. Tate buckled Biegalski's knees with a snappy left hook and right cross seconds before the final bell to win a unanimous decision from all five judges.

"How do you feel, John?" asked Tom "Sarge" Johnson, an assistant coach with the U.S. team.

"Good," answered the 22-year-old Tate, even though his left eye was all puffed and there was a scratch over it. "I could've fought three more rounds."

Tate goes against West Germany's Peter Hussing in tomorrow's quarter-finals and if he gets past him, he moves in with Teofilo Stevenson, Cuba's defending gold medalist, Thursday. Stevenson scored a two-round kayo over Senegal's Mamadou Drane Monday without extending himself.

After taking care of Biegalski, Tate showed up pressing an ice pack against his left eye. It wasn't anything, he said. He'd be ready for his next fight with Hussing.

Someone asked him how he felt about his first Olympic performance?

"Good," he said. "That fella had over two hundred fights, nearly four times what I had, and I think I did okay for the experience I had."

Big John Tate asked to get through that first one, and he did. He better pray a little harder, though, when he goes up against Stevenson.

Esopus Earns District 16 LL Championship

TOWN OF ULSTER—The Esopus Little Leaguers became the District 16 champs Monday night when they swept by the Kingston Americans, 8-0 at Ulster Little League Park. Esopus now advances to inter-divisional play with the games, sites and dates yet to be scheduled.

Esopus' shutout of Kingston was the team's third straight.

It is yet to be scored upon in championship play.

The key figure in the Esopus victory was Clark Maines, the starting pitcher. Maines struck out 11, walked nine and advanced his own cause by driving in two in picking up the win. He held the Americans to three hits while Kingston hurlers Tony Tiano, who took the loss, and relief thrower Bob Reilly, gave up six hits.

Offensive fireworks were provided by John Loughlin, eighth in the batting order, who tagged a homer and drove in three runs. Robbie Baxter also knocked one out.

Esopus earned the shot at the championship by downing the Indians 2-0, Maines winning that game, and Rondout

5-0, Bob Blaha the winner in that contest. Kingston gained the finals by victories over the Kingston Nationals (8-1), the Jaycees (7-0) and Ellenville (19-1).

In a loser's bracket game, Rondout Valley slipped by Highland, 8-7.

John Harris Hurls Saugerties 0-Hitter

SAUGERTIES — John Harris of the Dodgers threw a no-hitter in recent Saugerties Little League action as his team blasted the Tigers, 12-0.

Harris fanned 10 batters and received offensive help from Mike Hase-bag, who led an 11-hit tttack with two singles and a double.

The Fire Department Auxiliary Sparks became the first undefeated team in the three-year history of the Girls Major Softball League, defeating the Coronets 10-4 to finish the second half at 8-0 and the combined season at 15-0.

Donna Buck was the winning pit her as the Sparks nailed down their perfect season. Behind the Sparks in the standings are the Colleens (6-2), GB's (5-3), Honey B's (3-5), Holo's (1-7) and Coronets (1-7).

In senior softball action, the Sew & Sews scored a run in the top of the ninth and held the Cut ets scoreless in the bottom half to eke out a 10-9 victory in the first game of a best-of-three championship series. Karen Austen got the victory and Tina Kime took the loss. Austen also led the hit parade, belting out five, as the teams combined for 39 safeties.

In the Town of Ulster Little League, the Indians took over first place with a big come from behind win over the Yankees, 11-6, overcoming a 5-0 deficit after the first inning. Jim Childs finished strong, allowing only three hits over the final five innings to pick up the win. Jeff Norman had three hits for the Yankees.

The Dodgers beat the Tiger 6-4 in a special playoff matchup to clinch the second half title in the Saugerties Little League National League. Dan Fogerty was the winner and had two hits. The Dodgers and Tigers had finished tied for first with identical 5-4 records before the playoff.

The Tigers won the first half by defeating the Giants on , 6-5. The Dodgers and Tigers will meet again in a playoff for the overall title.

The Pirates won the American League pennant with a perfect 9-0 record. The Braves were second at 7-2.

Kingston Trust Scores In Senior Babe Ruth

KINGSTON—Kingston Trust of the Senior Babe Ruth League rode over Sickler's Delivery in a recent battle of batting attacks, 14-10.

Entering the sixth and last inning, Kingston appeared to have the game easily won with a 14-6 margin but Sickler's rallied, pushing four across. The rally still fell four short. Kingston gained its runs on only six hits. Ron Jansen and Curtis Van Demark starring with five RBIs between them. Sickler's had to work harder for its runs, as 15 hits only scored 10 runs.

Saugerties Girls Roll, 40-0

SAUGERTIES — Saugerties Little League junior girls softball all-stars have served notice on District 15 opponents.

The Saugerties team opened tournament play by demolishing Cairo, 40-0.

Saugerties clouted 22 hits and scored in bunches in every inning. Robin Peter, meanwhile, blanked Cairo on three hits, walking only one.

Katie Harder had four singles for Saugerties while Lisa Fellows homered and tripled twice. Michelle Hebert and Kella Falzano also had three hits apiece.

Susan Metzler was the losing pitcher.

Connors on Winning Track

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The "new" Jimmy Connors was back on the winning track today, using out-of-character politeness to win friends, including arch-rival Arthur Ashe, his newfound doubles partner.

Connors collected the $20,000 victor's check in the $125,000 Washington Star tennis tournament Monday with a 6-2, 6-4 victory over Raul Ramirez.

It was Connors' third straight win over the Mexican star since he lost to Ramirez in Davis Cup play in Mexico City last September.

"Tonight I played well enough to win and he didn't play up to his standards," Connors said. "I've played better many times."

"It's been said I'm not playing as good as I was in the past and it doesn't take 110 per cent to beat me, but I don't think so."

After winning his semifinals match Sunday, Ramirez said Connors isn't as difficult a target as in the past. But after the match, Ramirez commented:

"He didn't have any weaknesses in the first set and a half. He just wasn't making any mistakes."

Ramirez then recouped some prestige as he paired up with Brian Gottfried to defeat Connors and Ashe, 6-3, 6-3, to take the doubles title.

Nonetheless, Connors and Ashe, antagonists in the past in the law courts as well as in tennis, showed promise in their first appearance as a doubles team during the Washington event.

Connors' regular partner, Ilie Nastase, and Ashe's usual teammate, Tom Okker, weren't entered in the event.

The former Wimbledon and U.S. champions had won four straight doubles matches before bowing to Ramirez and Gottfried, recognized as the top pair in professional tennis.

In the singles final, Connors hit crisply from the baseline and pounded his way to a 5-1 lead, winning five straight games on a pair of service breaks.

The first break came as Connors' deep backhand shots forced Ramirez to the baseline where the Mexican made four errors. The second came with the help of a double fault, a passing shot off Ramirez's service and two shots by the latter into the net.

Connors scored a service break in the first game of the second set but then lost his own on two successive double faults and two errors in the eighth game to allow Ramirez to draw even.

But then, down love-30, he broke back immediately and nailed down the match in a deuce game when a Ramirez job floated out and his service was netted.

Baseball Attendance Is Up by Over Million

NEW YORK (UPI) — Major league baseball is celebrating on two fronts. Already one and a half million fans ahead of its 1975 pace, the major leagues are looking forward to another milestone when they expect their billionth fan to be in attendance at a game later this week.

Since 1901 when the American League was formed and record-keeping was updated in the National League, 999,077,415 fans have passed through stadium turnstiles to watch major league action. With only 922,585 fans needed to meet the billion mark, major league officials are projecting Saturday, July 31, as the date of this baseball milestone.

In games played through Sunday, July 25, attendance has increased by nine percent over 1975 totals. Fourteen teams are ahead of last season's totals for a comparative number of home games, led by the New York Yankees, the Boston Red Sox and the Cincinnati Reds. In addition, three clubs have already passed the million-and-a-half mark in attendance — the Los Angeles Dodgers, the Philadelphia Phillies and Cincinnati.

Could Be Mars Life

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)

Encouraged by the existence of nitrogen and evidence of water, scientists believe life on Mars could be discovered by Viking 1, starting its second week of exploration today.

Scientists today will try once more to fix Viking's crippled seismometer and make the final course corrections for Viking 2's approach to Mars.

The exploring robot's formal hunt for life on the planet begins Wednesday, and the presence of nitrogen near the planet's surface means life could exist on Mars.

"If you just increased the oxygen abundance on Mars, we could breathe that atmosphere," Dr. Tobias Owen said. "We're breathing all those things now."

Owen said it and other gases in the atmosphere also suggest the planet had — and may still have — enough water in the form of ice to submerge a six-story building.

"The conclusion is that Mars represents a sort of intermediate case between Earth and the moon," he said. "There's quite a bit of water around, which may still be there."

A second color photo was released Monday showed a gray portion of the Viking spacecraft, including an orange cable, in addition to the surface and sky.

"The sky is indeed a pink to a kind of cream orange," said Dr. Thomas Mutch, chief of Viking's picture analysts. The surface is stained an even deeper rust-red than first believed.

The report showed the thin Mars air has 95 per cent carbon dioxide, 2 to 3 per cent nitrogen and 1 to 2 per cent argon. In comparison, Earth has 78 per cent nitrogen, 21 per cent oxygen, 1 per cent argon and a tiny amount of carbon dioxide.

Viking earlier discovered nitrogen in Mars' upper atmosphere, but the measurements at the surface were not conclusive. Dr. Gerald Soffen, a biologist and chief scientist of the $1 billion project, was ecstatic.

"People have always tried to find the reasons we could not have life on Mars," he said. "It was always too cold, it was always too dry, it was always too barren of oxygen, it was always too barren of nitrogen. I think we've got all the elements necessary (for life). The question is, did it happen?"

The first results from Viking's three biology instruments are expected Aug. 9. Owen, of the State University of New York, said the makeup of the Martian atmosphere suggests Mars has enough water.

"Cradle Snatchers"

On the Beach

Marine biologist Gary Davis (l) and University of Michigan professor Frances Fisher struggle to move a pilot whale off the beach at Loggerhead Key and into shallow water. Approximately 30 whales beached themselves, the third time that has happened recently in Florida waters.

'God's Wish' Protects Amin

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)

President Idi Amin of Uganda, who once said "God's wish" protected him against assassins, escaped a bomb attack three days ago in which several guards were killed, a Kenya newspaper said today.

The Daily Nation said two bombs exploded at Amin's hilltop military headquarters in Kampala Saturday and a third bomb was defused. It said Amin was not injured in the attack but an unknown number of his guards were killed.

Radio Uganda denied the report and an earlier conflicting story by Nairobi's Standard newspaper that claimed disgruntled army troops attacked the command post with rifle fire.

The radio admitted there had been shooting in Kampala Saturday but attributed it to test firing of new anti-aircraft and antitank weapons by Amin, his two wives and a four-year-old son. It appealed to Ugandans not to panic.

Other reports spread that Amin had fled Uganda. Residents in the capital of Kampala, contacted by telephone, were extremely nervous and refused to talk.

Another attempt was made on Amin's life in early June when attackers threw grenades at his limousine, killing the driver, a bodyguard and dozens of other persons but leaving him almost unscathed.

The unpredictable Ugandan said afterward he was saved "by God's wish" and claimed he was unafraid of future danger because "if I am going to die God will tell me."

But diplomatic observers said Amin, who came to power in a bloodless coup more than five years ago, was fighting for political survival and appeared to be slipping from power as problems piled up on him.

Both the Nation and Standard said Amin was now so fearful for his life he was staying with different friends each evening.

Uganda's supreme policy-making body, the Defense Council, reportedly was studying whether Amin should be forced to step down.

Diplomats said there was no clear successor.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

ACCUSED: (Q.) I know this guy. His name is Joe. His friend told his mother that he caught us in the bedroom doing something bad. Joe tried to tell her that was not true, but she did not believe him.

I like Joe a lot and he likes me a lot. Please help to keep us together. —Suspected in South Carolina

(A.) Parents should listen to their children before judging them. Joe's mother didn't listen to him. Go with Joe and talk to her. Ask her to hear your account of what happened. Tell her the truth. Ask her to ask you questions about anything she is doubtful about. If she asks any questions answer them truthfully.

VISITORS: (Q.) I'm going with this guy, Mike, and I really like him a lot. I was babysitting one night and he came to the house where I was. His best friend and two other girls were with him. He only stayed a few minutes.

But after he left I got to thinking about it and I got sorta jealous because one of the girls was really pretty and it looked to me like a double date. Next time I saw him I asked him and he told me nothing was going on between them, that they were just riding around.

What should I do? Should I trust him and believe what he said or should I look deeper into the subject? I'm 14 and he's 15. Please help. —Worry Wart in Pennsylvania

(A.) Don't make a big thing out of a small thing. If Mike had meant anything heavy with the other girl, the last thing he would have done would be to bring her by to visit you. Cross-examining a boy you like and showing jealousy without a good reason can make you look bad in his eyes.

Another thing: A girl who is babysitting should not have social visitors. She is on a job, and work time is not visiting time. Also, having visitors in a situation like that can start things that aren't easy to stop. Even when nothing happens, other people may notice and be suspicious.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, JULY 28

Your birthday today: Sees you in the early stages of an effort to establish a central theory with which to operate toward career success. Don't go into a tailspin over occasionally unproductive periods; they're necessary to let your mind digest current experience. Relationships drift well enough to help in moments of need, fare better by investing real attention. Today's natives are generous, often optimistic beyond factual basis.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Let today be a lull in your onward push. Bring details up to date, make room for greater action coming soon. Listen attentively to all ages.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Continue on the goodwill and momentum of yesterday. Take care of work laid out. Add to savings early in the day, that way you aren't tempted to splurge.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Make sensible changes, but be sure everybody can keep going full speed ahead on production. Your urge to trade things off reaches a peak late day.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Probability increases of meeting people who will provide further introductions. Earning capacities rise in tacit recognition of your progress.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Cater to an expansive mood in all except spending. There's enough extra expense without your reckless impulses. Organize something friends can share.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): New developments, a fresh approach resolve chronic concerns. Prospects are bright where you know the material well and see how you can make a quick profit.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are asked for money; it's up to you to say "no" firmly. You've special aptitude now for creative effort that in time will provide all you need.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's sufficient if you simply manage your own affairs, with emphasis on maintenance. Set up a revised, more conservative budget, increasing reserves.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Check signals with silent partners. Your enterprises need minor changes; trouble shooting. A blaze of publicity serves no purpose just yet.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get your full work quota done on time. New people encountered this evening become very important later. Give them a chance to get well acquainted.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Estimates are misleading, or you sense something isn't right. Make major decisions, purchases at the last hour. Clear up details first.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Plan for prudent thrift. However, money is for spending, sometimes quickly, unexpectedly, which is likely today. Be sure you get what you pay for.

Today's hand is typical of the hands shown in the auction bridge columns and books of 50 or 60 years ago. South bid one notrump and everyone would pass since in auction you got credit for all over tricks below the line.

West would open the three of spades and the defense would gather in four spade tricks. East would signal with the 10 of diamonds on the fourth spade and West would lead a diamond.

South would take his ace of diamonds and cash four club tricks. West would discard three diamonds.

Now South would cash his ace and queen of hearts and finesse for West's jack in order to score nine tricks and win the rubber.

The author would explain that the finesse was a sure thing. If West had held a five-card diamond suit he would have opened it. In auction you led your longest suit against notrump. Woe betide any iconoclast who violated that rule. Hence, when West showed lead on the second club lead he was marked with 4-4-4-1 distribution.

A contract declarer would probably make the same play, but it would not be a sure thing. Contract players don't always lead their longest suit.

Carter Nephew In Calif. Prison

Spann, behind bars.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Jimmy Carter's 29-year-old nephew, in prison for two armed robberies, says his family told him "to live my own life" when his uncle made his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, the San Francisco Chronicle reported Monday.

In a copyrighted story, the newspaper quoted William Carter Spann as saying his mother, Carter's sister Gloria Spann, told him "We're too involved in this campaign" after he expressed fears of death threats in jail.

"She told me to live my own life," Spann said, according to the Chronicle, which interviewed him Sunday after he testified in the trial of a man with whom he said he had a homosexual relationship in San Quentin prison.

Spann, who was quoted as saying he took drugs at the time of the robberies, said inmates "told me there was a contract out on my life" because of his testimony as a prosecution witness last week. "I don't want Uncle Jimmy to do anything except get me out of the state," said Spann. "But my family won't even communicate with me."

"I just want to leave this state. I was convicted and I have to serve this time. But I want to serve it in a prison somewhere else."

Rex Granum, press director for Carter, said he was "not aware" of any decision by Mrs. Spann to disassociate herself from her son.

He confirmed that in 1971, Carter, then governor of Georgia, interceded on Spann's behalf after he expressed fears of death threats in another California prison. On that occasion, Spann was placed in special "protective custody" at the jail.

Spann told the Chronicle that at the time of the two armed robberies he was "so high on speed and heroin that I couldn't remember what happened. It was like I was on a roller coaster."

Prison records show that Spann was treated in a prison hospital in 1974 for drug addiction, the Chronicle said.

Spann was sentenced to 10-years-to-life May 26 after pleading guilty to the robberies. Records disclosed he had been in and out of state prisons since 1969, when he was first convicted of car theft and burglary in Los Angeles.

He was paroled in 1971, but was returned to jail in 1972 for possession of a weapon, and then paroled again in November 1975.

Spann said that before coming to California he spent most of his childhood on the Carter family peanut farm in Plains, Ga. He told the Chronicle he was an alcoholic by age 12, quit school and worked on the farm "until Uncle Jimmy worked me so hard I ran back to school. That was the best thing he could have done for me."

The Carter camp denied Spann paid more than an occasional visit to the family farm, the Chronicle said. It quoted Granum as saying Carter "doesn't dispute" that Spann worked on the farm. But Granum said the nephew "never really and truly worked as a paid worker on Jimmy Carter's farm."

Sheriff Tom Houchins of Alameda County, explaining the incident at the Canadian Border.

Fleeing Busnaper Barred at Border

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — A suspected abductor of 26 school children attempted to flee into Canada, but was turned back at the border because he carried three pistols and a rifle, authorities said Monday night.

The incident at the Washington-Canadian border occurred July 19, three days after the children and their bus driver burrowed their way to freedom from 16 hours in an underground prison at a Livermore, Calif., quarry. However, it was before arrest warrants were issued in the case.

Border guards detained James Schoenfeld, 24, while a check on him and the guns was made through police networks. Schoenfeld was cleared by the checks and released. He was allowed to buy back the four guns seized by customs, but was not permitted entry to Canada.

An "informational bulletin" describing the suspect and his attempt to cross the border was broadcast by Canadian police late Monday as a "matter of routine" and did not mean he was in that country, authorities said.

Border guards said Schoenfeld, son of a wealthy Atherton, Calif., podiatrist, drove a 1963 beige Chrysler, with California license plate HMJ913. In the vehicle were three of the guns and "identifications" of two other persons, Frederick Woods, also a known suspect in the case, and Ralph Snyder. No information about Snyder was available.

An all-points bulletin was put out on July 23 for Schoenfeld, Woods and Schoenfeld's younger brother, Richard, 22, who surrendered that same day in Alameda County.

In Marin County, meanwhile, a search for evidence in the case was launched in the Stinson Beach area north of San Francisco. No details were disclosed.

The younger Schoenfeld, jailed in Oakland on $1 million bail, is scheduled to be arraigned Thursday in Chowchilla, Calif., from where the children were abducted on their bus trip home from a summer school swimming outing on July 16. Attorney William Gagen said his client would plead innocent to 43 kidnap-robbery charges.

The border incident came to light when William Pifer, a part-time Washington state border guard, came across Schoenfeld's name earlier Monday while routinely going through the Canadian border reports.

Automakers' Poverty Plea Ruined by Record Earnings

DETROIT (UPI) — The announcement of record second-quarter earnings by Chrysler Corp. Monday apparently ended any chance for the firm to plead poverty in the current contract talks with the United Auto Workers.

With General Motors and Ford expected to announce record level earnings later this week, the Big Three automakers would be hard pressed to explain why workers should not get a jump in wages, cost of living protection and other benefits.

As early as last week when talks began, UAW Vice President Douglas Fraser, who heads the union negotiating team at Chrysler, said earnings would be a factor in the union's demands.

"Had we met in 1974 or 1975 to work out an agreement," Fraser said, "I'm sure finances would have been a major question. There sure won't be any grounds to plead poverty this year."

In contract talks Monday, Fraser's attitude was evident as UAW officials told Chrysler and General Motors they want the new contract to include improved cost-of-living protection, plus an increase in base wages that exceeds the 3 per cent figure in effect for the past six years.

Chrysler, the first of the Big Three to report quarterly earnings, said profits hit $155.1 million in the period, compared to a $55.5 million loss a year ago.

"The company is in solid financial condition," Chairman John Riccardo and President E. A. Cafiero said in a joint statement.

The executive said a major factor in Chrysler's rapid recovery was the continued strong sales performance of the compact Dodge Aspen and Plymouth Volare.

Chrysler's profit, which was well above the $128 million prediction of industry analysts, indicates GM and Ford also will reveal whopping earnings Wednesday and Thursday.

GM could set corporate history with its report. Analysts have said the world's largest car-maker's earnings might exceed $920 million for the quarter, approaching American Telephone & Telegraph's $939.6 million in second quarter earnings. ATT's report was the highest ever reported for a corporation.

Ford is expected to have earnings of $430 million, compared to $106 million in the second quarter last year.

Busnaper Denied
Access to Canada

OAKLAND, Calif. — James Schoenfeld, suspected abductor of 26 school children, was turned back when he tried to cross the Canadian border July 19, it was said Monday night, because he had four firearms with him.

He was released because it was not known he was wanted in connection with the kidnapping, which involved the abduction of 26 school children, their bus driver, and the taking of their bus. Schoenfeld tried the border crossing three days after the abduction but before warrants were issued in the case.

American Imports
Tip Trade Balance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States imported considerably more than it exported in June — largely due to a surge in oil imports — eclipsing May's surplus, the government said Tuesday.

The Commerce Department said June's $377.3 million deficit almost eclipsed May's $395.6 million surplus — the nation's only trade surplus of the year.

As a result, the United States has a $1.048 billion trade deficit for the year as a whole, compared with the $5.045 billion surplus it had at the same time in 1975.

Gas Bombs Blast
S. African School

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Gasoline bombs exploded in a black high school on the outskirts of Pretoria today, destroying hundreds of examination papers, police said.

Joseph Motau, acting principal of Mamelodi high school, said several of the bombs did not go off and there were no injuries. The principal said the exam papers had been marked and pupils would not have to take the tests again.

Black schools around Pretoria and Johannesburg reopened last week, but attendance has been low. The schools were shut down following widespread racial violence in mid-June that killed 176 persons and wounded 1,139.

Reds Move Into
Italian Parliament

ROME (UPI) — Italy's parliament elected its first Communist committee chairmen in almost three decades today in a move that gave the Marxists increased influence over taxation and government spending policy.

The committee chairmanships, allocated in a compromise arrangement between the Communists and ruling Christian Democrats, put Marxists at the head of four committees in the Chamber of Deputies and three in the Senate.

The Communist chairmen were elected according to a compromise accord with the Christian Democrats worked out Monday night that reflected the Marxists' increased parliamentary strength following the June 20-21 national elections.

Chemical Leak
Fled in Italy

SEVESO, Italy (UPI) — The Italian army has evacuated 216 persons, including 80 children, who lived near a chemical defoliant factory that leaked a white cloud of poisonous gas, turning leaves yellow and inflaming human skin.

Army units Monday evacuated the 43 families from their homes around the Icmesa chemical factory in Seveso, near the northern outskirts of Milan. They were moved out by bus with only the clothes on their backs.

Fire Kills Seven
In Minnesota City

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn. (UPI) — An apartment fire today killed seven persons and hospitalized four others in this northern Minnesota city.

Firemen probed the debris for other bodies. A fire dispatcher said one girl was missing. "We don't know if she was staying there or not," he said.

Reagan And Senator Are A Strange Match

Schweiker Choice Surprises The GOP

United Press International

Ronald Reagan's choice of liberal Pennsylvania Sen. Richard Schweiker was a calculated blockbuster. But so far it hasn't busted any blocs of delegates.

An extensive but incomplete check by UPI of Pennsylvania's 103-person delegation shows the only firm switch to Reagan is Schweiker himself — and there is some indication of possible movement the other way.

An uncommitted conservative college student previously leaning toward Reagan was offended by the choice: "My gut reaction is to jump immediately to the Ford team," said James Stein, 21.

But most Pennsylvanians wanted to wait until after the entire delegation talked to Ford Thursday in a meeting that has been scheduled for some time.

Meanwhile in Plains, Ga., Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter and his running mate, Walter Mondale, finished intensive defense briefings and began consulting economic advisers on campaign issues of employment and inflation.

Reagan's dramatic announcement at midday Monday belied his repeated statements that he wanted a running mate whose philosophy was "compatible" with his own.

Sen. Richard Schweiker

Schweiker, at a Washington press conference following the announcement, acknowledged differences of viewpoint but said he and Reagan could form a new coalition that would revive the fortunes of the Republican party. He said Reagan's decision demonstrates "boldness and candor."

Reactions were fast and furious, and ranged from stunned disbelief to pleased wonderment to bitterness.

Ford himself had no immediate comment, but his campaign manager Rogers C.B. Morton called the ticket a "mismatch," and said "It appears to be an effort to exchange the second-highest office in the land for a handful of delegates."

From all across the land the comments poured in, but there was no indication of any early avalanche of either approval or disapproval from Republicans.

In Georgia, Carter expressed surprise at the announcement but had little else to say about it. The Democratic candidate arose early, took a long walk shortly after 6 a.m., and then settled in with Mondale for a full day of briefings by his issues advisers.

In midafternoon he told reporters he rejects Reagan's contention the United

Faerber Wants Action Against NYC

Water Suit Threatened

KINGSTON — Governor Hugh Carey's indication that he would veto the Catskill water release bill has elicited the threat of a lawsuit and the promise of political retribution from local sportsmen and environmentalists.

Frederick G. Faerber III, president of the Federated Sportsmen's Club said this morning that he would contribute his own money toward a lawsuit against the City of New York if the bill, which would regulate the discharge of water from that city's reservoirs in the Catskills, was vetoed.

"The counties and the people involved should sue New York City for the 1905 move that took, like a thief, land from the people of this region."

Faerber thinks that "given an honest jury and the fair court system" such a suit would have a 90 per cent chance of succeeding.

He also added that the governor could lose political support in the region if he goes through with his plans.

"Carey's not interested in the people of this county and I don't think he'll get any votes if the veto goes through," he said.

The legislation effects waterflow along 180 miles of the Neversink and Delaware rivers and the Esopus Creek. Proponents of the bill have charged that New York City arbitrarily damaged the ecology of these waterways by either letting them run dry or discharging so much water that they become flooded.

John N. Hoeko, president of Catskill Waters, the conservation group which lobbied for the bill, echoed Faerber's sentiments on the possibility of a court case if the veto occurs.

"We are very seriously considering such litigation. I have spoken at length with a number of people who see it as a strong possibility."

Hoeko, who personally helped the legislation win assembly approval, said he was crestfallen at the veto possibility calling it a "stupid decision on the part of Carey."

"When it comes time for re-election I think he will find the people of this region very unresponsive. He will lose upstate votes if he vetoes that bill."

The legislation had passed the Assembly by a slim margin late last month.

Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey Jr., Saugerties, who had co-sponsored the bill, has been out of town for the last two days and his office had not received any word from him on the possible action.

The governor's decision is expected Wednesday.

City Cops Fly Away in UFO?

By SID LEAVITT
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — People from outer space have abducted two Kingston cops, see, and the officers' wives are holding a press conference out in Ulster. Got that?

With little more preparation than that bizarre premise, a dozen area newspaper and broadcast reporters became actors Monday night as they played themselves at a "press conference" staged for the videotape cameras of Woodstock film makers John Keeler and Ruth Rotko.

The story, "The Last Space Voyage of Wallace Ramsel," may be bizarre, but it isn't improbable, said Keeler, whose earlier films included documentaries on unidentified flying objects (UFO's).

"The probability of people from outer space approaching this planet either already or in the future," Keeler said, pausing at the guffaws of newsmen as they read their sketchy scripts in the background, "is very likely."

The story was inspired by a UFO sighting reported several years ago by two Kingston police officers, James Wallace and Richard Ramsel, but that incident is only a starting point for the high-flying "Last Space Voyage."

As the newsmen came in, the wives of the two officers, renamed Wallace Ramsel and Charles Parker, have learned their husbands are on a spacecraft heading for the aliens' home planet, a trip that somehow is being broadcast over nationwide TV.

When Keeler turned on his camera, the class amateur actors turned out to be Charles Bempohl of the Mid-Hudson Leisure and Sylvia Day of the Ulster County Townsman, who grilled professional actresses Rochelle Haas and Caroline Cox as if the world presses were holding for a remake.

However, the stern faces got a little shaky when the Ulster County Gazette's Phil Nero asked the fictitious Mrs. Ramsel if she thought her husband was in outer space because of marital troubles at home.

"The creatures look like you and me, only smaller."

As the newsmen pushed and shoved outside the 20 Brookside Court home of Paul Marcello, a friend of the production, the neighborhood youngsters stood in a polite circle outside the glaring lights.

"Yeah, I've seen this all before," one youngster said. "They were shooting here last month and the lady in the green dress had an argument with the sheriff."

Among the other local people cast as themselves in the film is Ulster County Sheriff Thomas F. Mayone.

But by this point in the story, the only local law officer left to protect the wives from the newsmen is real-life Woodstock auto mechanic Michael Imberman, cast as a lowly police dispatcher without a gun.

"I have trouble following the story, too," Imberman admitted to a newsmen, "I'm going to wait and see the film."

Keeler and Rotko hoped the documentary-type drama would be released early next summer on the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS), serving educational channels 17 in Albany and 13 in New York City.

COMING DOWN

Demolition crews take down a third building of the old St. Ann's Convent complex on Broadway to make way for a new subsidized elderly housing complex, expected to be finished in March. The six-story, 104-unit structure will remain private property, owned and operated by Granada Builders Inc., with federal rent subsidies available to eligible tenants through the Kingston Housing Authority under the so-called Section 8 program. A fourth St. Ann's building, a picturesque carriage house, will be preserved alongside the new building.

500 Evacuated From Lebanon by U.S. Navy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — U.S. Embassy officials ordered more than 500 foreign nationals, including about 200 Americans, to assemble at a beachfront hotel today for a sea evacuation from battle-torn Beirut.

U.S. officials said the Palestine Liberation Organization had agreed to provide security for the morning landing of U.S. Navy boats in leftist-held western Beirut to ferry the evacuees to warships offshore.

They said they had "tact" promises from Christian rightist militias, which often have shelled the city's western coast, to hold their fire during the American operation.

An embassy spokesman said weekend applicants had swelled the list of foreigners wanting out of the ravaged capital to "more than 500," but no precise figures were available "because they're coming in all the time."

About 200 of the 1,500 Americans in Lebanon were reported registered for the evacuation.

Most of the U.S. Embassy staff was ordered to go, leaving behind a 15-man skeleton staff, including Marine guards who protect the mission.

Special U.S. Envoy Talcott Seelye decided to leave aboard the Navy craft.

The United States originally planned an overland convoy to Damascus but scrapped the idea when the PLO warned

it could not guarantee the safety of the evacuees, Palestinian sources said.

Meanwhile, fighting raged the entire length of the capital's 3 1/2-mile-long confrontation line only two days after the failure of an Arab League plan to use peace-keeping troops to expand the buffer zone separating the Moslem and Christian sectors.

The heaviest combat was reported in the Palestinian refugee camp of Tal Zaatar in southeast Beirut and in the Moslem slum district of Nabaa.

PLO spokesmen said they received word from Tal Zaatar that 250 persons died in the collapse of a basement bomb shelter under Christian shelling last week.

Arab League mediator Hassan Sabri Kholy announced suspension of his peace plan until a new truce agreement could be worked out.

The decision followed Sunday's short-lived cease-fire, which was shattered when the ultra-rightist "Tigers" militiamen of Interior Minister Camille Chamoun fired on Saudi Arabian and Sudanese peace-keeping forces to prevent them from taking up positions on the Christian side of the buffer zone.

Kholy met with Chamoun Monday and said the rightist leader had "agreed to be cooperative."

Bridge-Dweller Is Dead

HIGHLAND — State Police at Highland report finding the body of Wacław Strezynski, 55, an area eccentric well known to users of the Mid-Hudson Bridge. Mr. Strezynski, who was also known as Mike, lived under the western end of the bridge and walked across the bridge to Poughkeepsie every day, frequently carrying a bundle of newspapers with him. Mr. Strezynski also spent a great deal of time in the Poughkeepsie area, particularly at the library.

The body was found early Monday evening by State Trooper Girard Henne and Roger Hageman at the top of a cut in the rock under the western end of the bridge. The foot search was instituted when area residents said they hadn't seen him for several weeks. Police say Strezynski had probably been dead for about that long. Ulster County Coroner Arthur Chipp issued a verdict of death by natural causes.

A veteran of World War II, Strezynski is survived by a sister.

Hing Gets Angry Note

NEW PALTZ — Bruce Hing the state university student who chose to sue the county Department of Social Services for assistance rather than live in the County Home has received a threatening letter.

Hing, who contacted the Freeman on Monday from his university dormitory residence, said he received an unsigned letter postmarked July 24, Kingston, which included a clipping from the paper's classified ad section and a hand-written message.

"If you people keep ripping us off white middle class we will finally get p--- off enough to have our own riot."

The three employment ads circled were for two waiter positions and a cloth cutter job.

Hing said he has been unable to work since he suffered a neck injury which he is now being treated for.

The State Supreme Court is currently considering Hing's case, which was heard last Friday in Albany.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Prosecutor Sam Mayerson Dropped a bombshell at the trial of William and Emily Harris today with announcement that Patricia Hearst was ready to take the witness stand and testify against them at their kidnap-robbery-assault trial.
Mayerson said he had been informed just this morning by Miss Hearst's attorney, Albert Johnson, that the 22-year-old heiress was prepared to "waive all rights and privileges" which might lead to self-incrimination since she faces the same charges.
Mayerson had just about concluded the government case against the Harris couple, former SLA captors of Miss Hearst, in the charges stemming from a May, 1974, incident at a Los Angeles sporting goods store in which all three were involved.
Miss Hearst's trial had been severed from that of the Harris while she underwent psychiatric examination ordered by the judge at her San Francisco bank robbery trial and Mayerson had said previously that the prosecution did not intend to call Miss Hearst as a witness at the Harris trial.
Mayerson's statement caught the defense completely by surprise.
Mayerson asked for a recess of the trial until Thursday.

Gas Rates Tripled

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Federal Power Commission nearly tripled today the rates producers can charge for natural gas sold in interstate commerce.
The commission, ruling after a two-year review of the current ceiling of 52 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, set a new ceiling of $1.42 for gas headed for interstate commerce after Jan. 1, 1975.

Ethics Unit Urges Reprimand for Sikes

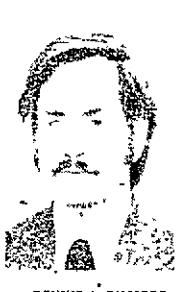

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The House Ethics Committee says Rep. Robert L.F. Sikes, D-Fla., "has violated standards of conduct applicable to all members of Congress," and should be reprimanded but not punished.
The panel's formal report on the Sikes case was published Monday and confirmed earlier UPI reports that it would recommend a reprimand on two of three complaints against him and was withholding a rebuke on the third only because it took place too long ago.
It was the first time the committee has acted against any member of Congress since it was created in 1968 after the late Adam Clayton Powell was expelled from the House for misuse of committee funds.
But one member chastised the committee for the July 1 "leak" of its findings to UPI and the Washington Star.
The report is tentatively scheduled to come to the House floor Thursday, where it could be opened to amendment by a majority vote or simply voted up or down.
Sikes declined comment pending a speech in the House, but in a CBS interview he called the findings unjustified and said his re-election chances have not been damaged by the action.
The committee acted after

How to avoid the 3 mistakes of funeral planning.

Anyone who's planned a funeral knows how hard it is to make wise decisions under emotional strain. And how easy it is to (1) accept rather than select the type of service to be performed, (2) overlook some of the options and (3) possibly spend more than you should for the funeral.

D'Amboise Did Well at Woodstock

Editor's Note: John T. Sloper was involved in the theater for 18 years as stage manager and director. Since his move to Wappingers Falls in 1953, he has directed 24 productions locally. He now works freelance and has been writing theater reviews for area publications since 1960.

On leaving the Woodstock Playhouse Monday evening, a patron was heard to grumble, "That wasn't a ballet show—that was a ballet lesson!"

In a sense this was true, but the concert by Jacques D'Amboise and his friends from the New York City Ballet was far more than that. The one-night event was a demonstration of the warmth that can be generated when a self-effacing but superb artist, making it all look so easy, shows how it's done. The personable D'Amboise, making full use of the intimacy of the Playhouse and the informality of the bare stage, treating even the most serious aspects of his work with quiet humor, showing off his dances to their best advantage; and defying the fact that, at 42, he cannot quite perform all the spectacular feats that he did when younger or even some that he has done in recent performances at Woodstock, won the overflow audience completely.

There is a quality in the man, quite apart from his technical prowess or knowledge of his art that makes him, above all, a star entertainer—even when relaxing.

D'Amboise is turning more and more to choreography and a good half of the works shown were his own creations—at least one of them still in progress.

He is still, of course, capable of spectacular dancing but perhaps the most interesting segment of the program was when he was coaching Nina Fedorova in the lead role she will dance in a new work of his due this fall. As he corrected her "mistakes" and coaxed even more expression from her, we all began to appreciate anew the effort and artistry that go into every performance of poetry-in-motion that we take for granted.

The concert was a "ballet show" in the best sense. It not only provided dancing that was exquisite but gave each of us—balletomane and neophyte alike—a far greater appreciation of just what that indescribable thing called dance is trying to communicate to us.

Others involved were Janie Parker, Francisco Moncion and pianist Jerry Zimmerman. They are far above needing any paltry words of praise from me—others have said it far better.

If I seem to slough off a detailed description of each number, it's because I don't feel it's necessary. The important thing is to tell you what happened: a lesson in the humanities!

D'Amboise will be back at Woodstock again. Better see him next time!

Paper May Foil Zena Change

WOODSTOCK—A little green piece of paper may be the monkey wrench thrown into the midst of a controversial Zena zoning change that could defuse the issue, temporarily.

According to Herbert Hekler, director of the Ulster County Planning Board, an action taken by the Woodstock Town Board in granting a zoning change to developer Richard Mellert in June may have been invalidated by an oversight. Town officials reportedly forgot to file a final action report with the county planning board when they granted Mellert a change from residential-agriculture to commercial C-1 on a parcel of land at Zena's four corners. Mellert has plans to construct several businesses at the site, plans that have aroused much antipathy among Zena residents.

The law requires that a report must be filed with the county within seven days after a municipality takes action on a zoning change. Failure to comply may invalidate the action, if so decided by judicial review.

Since the zoning change took place in June, some opposition has formed to commercialization in the form of a petition signed by 125 residents, presented to town officials at their last board meeting in protest to the C-1 designation. A similar issue whereby the town would incorporate a toned down commercial zone (C-2) into five hamlets is also in the works. It is scheduled to be reviewed at the board's Aug. 5 meeting. Woodstock Supervisor Val Cadden, when contacted by the Freeman, said she had not heard of the possibility of invalidation of the town's C-1 zoning action for Zena.

States is second to the Soviet Union in armed strength. He said the United

But he declared: "We need to maintain a strong defense; we can never permit our nation to be vulnerable to attack or blackmail..."

Gage Case Set for Sept. Trial

KINGSTON—Saugerties Mayor James V. Gage is scheduled to go to trial "sometime in September," according to Ulster County First Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh.

There is no trial term in County Court in either July or August, he said, stating that the Gage case and four others are slated for the September calendar.

Gage was indicted Jan. 21 this year by an Ulster County Grand Jury on two counts of second degree grand larceny for allegedly embezzling some $15,000 in tax monies and for the alleged overpayment of about $1,500 to $2,000 in salary to himself while acting as village clerk-treasurer.

Clerk for ten years, Gage was indicted following a grand jury probe that extended back to 1971 and a state audit. In 1974 he resigned as clerk treasurer and ran for mayor on the Village Party ticket, narrowly defeating the incumbent Mayor Vernon "Joe" Benjamin by 37 votes. He has continued to serve as mayor since that time.

Kavanagh said County Court Judge Raymond J. Mino will make up the September calendar, probably by Aug. 31, and will decide which case to move to trial first.

dictment, which any defendant has."

The Saugerties mayor had pleaded innocent to all charges Feb. 2 on arraignment in county court and was freed in his own recognizance. His case, handled by attorney Thomas Rea, was adjourned several times prior to the summer interim.

Village officials have soft-peddled the issue, stating that they prefer to allow the courts to fulfill their function.

POLICE BEAT

Two Arrested in Rhinebeck

RHINEBECK—Rhinebeck state police arrested a 28-year-old Red Hook man and his 17-year-old companion Monday in connection with a burglary at the Rhinebeck Village garage on Jan. 23. The arrest followed a long investigation by Troopers Arthur Pierce and Dennis McGuire.

Arrested were Clarence Shanley, 28, Red Hook, and a 17-year-old, also from Red Hook, who was given youthful offender status. The two were arraigned before Rhinebeck Justice Joseph Waters, who remanded Shanley to the Dutchess County jail in lieu of $2,000 bail and released the youthful offender on his own recognizance.

The chainsaw stolen in the burglary was recovered.

Structure Fire

The three companies of the Roosevelt Fire Department combined to save two-thirds of a one-story structure in the Greenfield Housing Development in Hyde Park Monday. Assistant Chief Roland Perdomo said the structure was fully involved in flames when the 60 fire fighters arrived at the scene at Buttenwood Court in Hyde Park. The fire was under control within a half an hour, according to Perdomo.

The cause of the fire is under investigation by the Dutchess County Sheriff's Department. No one was injured in the blaze. The house is reportedly owned by Robert Roche.

Man Injured

A Woodstock man is reported in fair condition at Benedictine Hospital after his car went off the road in the Town of Hurley at 3:40 a.m. this morning.

Hurley state police say Kenneth Gordon, 23, Woodstock, was westbound on Maverick Road when his vehicle went off the right side of the highway. Gordon apparently overcorrected and the car went off the left shoulder of the road, stiking numerous trees.

Gordon was taken to Benedictine Hospital by the West Hurley Ambulance Squad. He had lacerations of the face and arms and is reported in fair condition.

Brush Fire Set

The Kingston fire department says brush fire which it

put out late Monday night was deliberately set.

The department reportedly received a call at 11:42 Monday night for a brush fire at the rear of the Colonial Gardens Apartments. The fire encompassed about 100 square feet and was extinguished with portable water tanks, pressurized water extinguishers and brooms.

DOCTOR'S AMBULANCE aided the injured in a head-on collision at the intersection of Lucas Avenue and Joys Lane in Hurley today. Three persons were injured. Ernest Longyear, 24, 55 Dunneman Street, Kingston, the driver of one of the vehicles, and his passenger, Gary Moore, Box 233, Rosendale, no age available, were taken to Benedictine Hospital where they were being treated this morning. Ambulance personnel said they were seriously injured. The driver of the other car, Mrs. Ann Connely, South Cairo, was taken to Kingston Hospital where she is reported in stable condition.

Unwed Fathers' Bill Okayed

ALBANY (UPI)—Gov. Hugh Carey today announced his approval of legislation designed to clearly define the rights of unwed fathers to have a voice in adoption proceedings involving their children.

Carey said recent court decisions had created "substantial confusion as to the obligations of courts and adoption agencies towards putative fathers."

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that unwed fathers must be given an opportunity to be heard before a decision terminating their parental rights, and the state Court of Appeals decided the consent of unwed fathers need not be obtained if their children were offered for adoption.

The bill requires that notice of adoption or other court proceedings be sent by registered mail to the last known address of any father of an out-of-wedlock child where the father can be determined through court proceedings or that father's own registration with the state Department of Social Services.

Carey said the notice would "enable such persons to present evidence to the court relevant to the best interests of the child." The law does not require the consent of unwed fathers before an adoption.

"The bill largely accomplishes its aim of achieving finality as early as possible in a child's life in the establishment of the rights, interests and obligations of all parties," Carey said.

However, the governor said

the 10 day's notice requirement should be lengthened and stronger efforts to find the fathers should be required.

The law, which goes into effect Jan. 1, was sponsored by Sens. John Dunne, R-Garden City, Joseph Pisani, R-New Rochelle, and Donald Halperin, D-Brooklyn.

Sign The Water Bill

A bill protecting Catskill rivers from further mistreatment by New York City is sitting on Governor Hugh Carey's desk awaiting his signature.

The legislation, sponsored by Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, would strip New York City of the power to regulate how much water the city releases from its reservoirs into the region's ailing rivers and streams.

A million dollars worth of studies have shown that the city has manipulated and mismanaged reservoir outflows into the waters for over half a century.

Environmental groups, such as Catskill Waters, Audubon Society, and the Environmental Planning Lobby, have opposed this legacy of abuse of the Catskill's potentially great rivers.

The legislation would return control over Catskill reservoir discharges to the state Division of Environmental Conservation. Past and present DEC commissioners backed the move. Mayor Abe Beame is lobbying against the bill. But the city's "what-me-worry?" attitude toward the Travers Hollow Bridge and its astounding refusal to pick up the tab for 16 years of snowplowing on city roads around the Ashokan Reservoir prove that the city can't be trusted to look after the interests of the Catskill region.

The city has amply demonstrated that it is an unreliable guardian of New York's water resources. It ought to be relieved of the job; Governor Carey should sign bill 12135-A stripping the city of its authority to control reservoir discharges today.

Architect Says It's Romanesque

Dear Editor:
In answer to my letter in regard to the architecture of the old City Hall, I feel that you should not only look up your basic premises, but should also make sure that they are valid.

If your Ray E. Graham, A.I.A., resident architect at Williamsburg, thinks the old building is Richardsonian Romanesque, he also should engage in looking for the facts. It is evident that Mr. Graham does not know Romanesque from Shmola, and I would please tell him so personally. I can designate the architecture of the building better than I, for

I designed the alteration work under the City Hall Architects Commission — Myron Teller, Gerard Betz and George Lowe, architects — in 1927 when it was decided to tone down the flamboyant Italian Gothic of the original structure. And if there is any slightest trace of interior details in Colonial Revival, I can't imagine where they would be — unless they came from some Italian colony.

Roy E. Graham is off base. Furthermore, he passed up a very fine example of Richardsonian Romanesque in the St. James Methodist Church here in Kingston.

12-Year-Old Has Good Advice

Dear Editor:
I was surprised you put on the front page a picture of four people on a bike.

I am a student that has just finished elementary school, and in each of my classes there they stressed the importance of bicycle safety by showing us, giving out booklets, and even having P.F.O. sponsored performers give bike safety lessons.

One main rule was never ride two people on one bike because it is a tremendous safety hazard. Showing a picture of four people on a bike may encourage people to get more people on a bike just to set a "record." And I'm sure you don't want to do that.

Staffer Missed Beauties of 9W

Dear Editor:

As a veteran 9W driver, I certainly predicted Pam Golinski's observations in Staff's Chance.

One paragraph bothered me, though, and I hope Ms. Golinski may find second thoughts on the matter. This concerned the "...the rolling mountain plains...the tiny villages which have very little aesthetic appeal."

Come on, Pam, wake up yourself. Granted, coming out of Highland the town has done it again on the 299/9W interchange by putting traffic lights on confusing things even more, but it's a little further north. Coming off the double lane highway, we enter the Town of Esopus. Notice anything? Sure, the temperature drops during warm and muggy days. Try it some time.

A little further on, we come to the "tiny village" of West Park. Look over to your left, Pam. On the other side of that mountain is a cabin known as Lablades. There, many years ago, a kind and gentle man named John Burroughs lived and wrote. I'll bet old John never saw two, much less a million, pine trees that looked alike. Maybe the village doesn't have aesthetic appeal to you, Pam, but residents, governors and the early industrial leaders and inventors of this country must have found something worthwhile. Maybe it was the peacefulness, because it's still here.

Continuing north, we pass Marist Brothers, then down Col. Payne's hill. Look over to your left again, Pam. See that ballfield? It was built and maintained by the firemen from the Esopus Fire Department. As a member of the staff side, you might appreciate the fact that there are a lot of little girls who would have been denied the fun of having their own softball league if that field hadn't been built. Cost to them or the taxpayers? Nothing. It was and still is, a voluntary effort on the part of the firemen.

Speaking of the firemen, we should be passing through the tiny village of Esopus by now. That's where the firehouse is. Stop in sometime. Look at the new lime-yellow pumper. It's just about the best one in Ulster County. You might meet some of the firemen, too. They meet a lot of people on 9W all the time. Usually at 2 in the morning when that dread disease you describe as 9W-itis strikes.

By this time you should be passing Mt. St. Alphonsus. It's on your right, there, where the top of what appears to be a castle hovers over the tree tops. Ever been there? You get the same feeling some get when they visit West Point. Tranquillity and awe.

Here comes Ulster Park up ahead. Apple orchards! You're in MacIntosh country now. Look carefully. The apples will be ready soon. Why not stop at Montella's or Nemeth's and get a few?

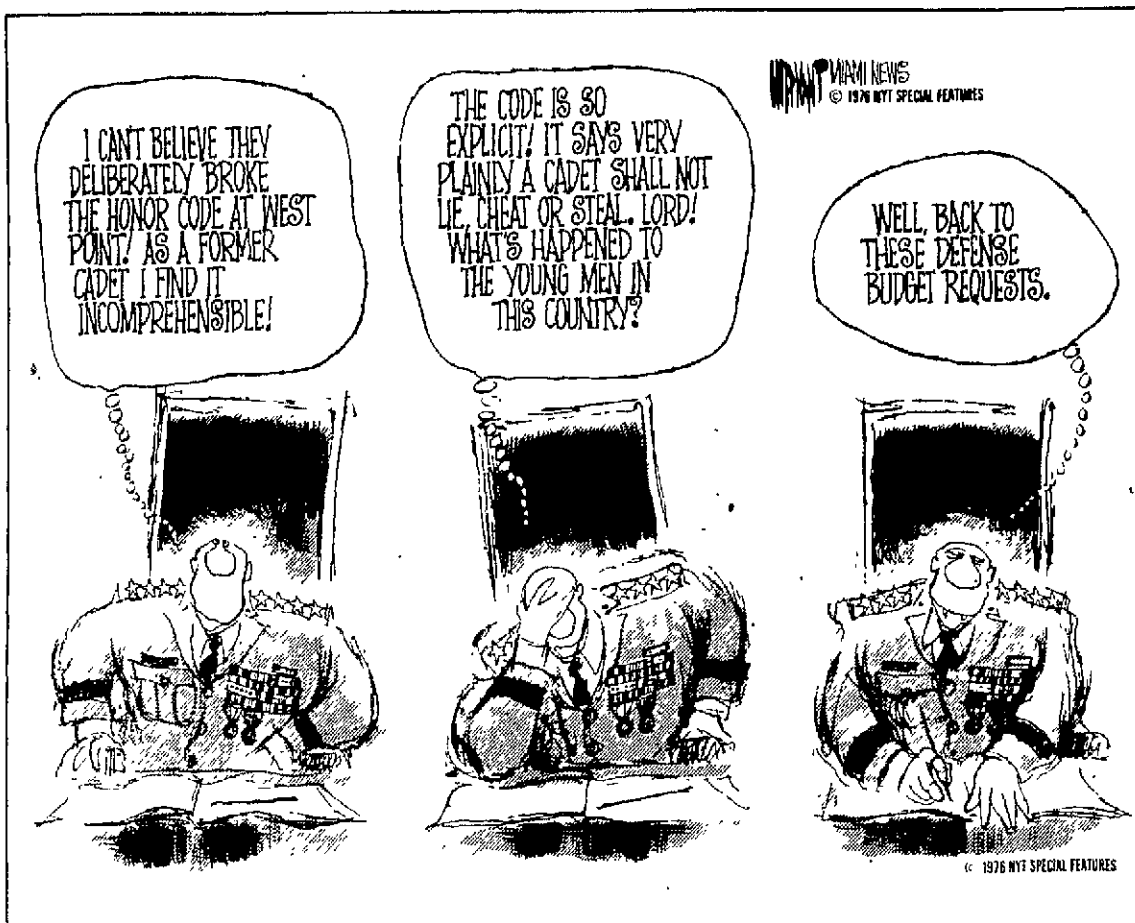

Mirror Lake is on your right now. Soon that coolness you first felt seven miles back will be leaving you. You're getting near Port Ewen and Kingston. While you continue, I'll stop here at Johnny's Drive In. He has a sure cure for 9W-itis. If you had some time I would have invited you in for a cup of coffee, but I know you are in a hurry.

By the way, if your trip is lonely, why not get a CB set for your car? Northbound every morning, the "double-deuce" and "backpacker" will keep you company. "Flagger-two" will let you know how traffic is coming out of Kingston. You'll meet "Charlie Brown" and a few others, too. On the side, "Sleepy Base" will always be able to help you if you have a problem while on the way in.

Living The Strenuous Life

I am among the millions of Americans who were hit as by the force of revelation by a stricture of Mr. Eisenhower's doctor, who lifted his famous patient from the bowels of despair after the President was struck down in Denver in 1955. Dr. Paul Dudley White bicycled in from Boston, took over, issued daily medical bulletins, and an occasional homily.

The one that changed my life, offered me great strategic serenity in exchange for immediate and quotidian mini-tortures. In order to lead a long and healthy life, said Dr. White one day to the reporters, you must observe three rules: 1) stop smoking cigarettes; 2) do not permit yourself to weigh more than you did when 25 years old; and 3) exercise strenuously.

It was bad enough giving up cigarettes, but eventually the pains of withdrawal ceased. Holding down your weight becomes increasingly difficult as you get older, but you can still permit yourself day-long, and even week-long orgies between the burgeoning fests. It is the physical exercise that is the endless spirit-crusher. Day after day. I live in mortal terror that science will establish, when I am about 70 years old, that I might have survived by doing 25, instead of the 30 push-ups I do every day, in dutiful memory of Paul Dudley White.

These I supplement with one hour, most weeks, in a gymnasium; and recently, in order to avoid jogging, I bought an indoor bicycle, and when I rise from my morning reading, grim-faced and resolute, I propel myself to it for another bout of what I call my daily mortification of the flesh.

Now a concomitant torture of physical exercise, most of us would agree, is the boredom a relief from which it is all but impossible to find. Iron-willed folk like Senator William Proxmire can, while jogging to work, concentrate on ways to pare down the military budget. John C. Calhoun, it is recorded, went from plowing his field to transcribing at his desk, as fast as he could write it out, the speech he had composed while working the soil.

All I ever managed on those few occasions when I jogged, was to concentrate on what a miserable form of self-punishment jogging is. But with the indoor bicycle, I reasoned, I might achieve distraction by watching television. Which is how it came to be that some time after nine on a recent morning I found myself listening for six and one-half minutes, that is to say, the time required for three miles of indoor bicycling at approximately 27 mph, the resistance spring set to medium-high, to a lady called Pat Collins, interviewing Eartha Kitt on the subject (I gather) of a book by Miss Kitt.

I arrived some time after Miss Kitt began answering Miss Collins' question, and it turns out, one gathers, that Miss Kitt is continually indignant at Lyndon Johnson's indignation over an episode in 1968. I dimly remember it, but the ladies refreshed my recollection (as the lawyers put it), and what happened was that at a White House reception, suddenly Miss Kitt decided to give a speech denouncing Lyndon Johnson for his Vietnam policies. Thereafter, it appears, she lost a lot of business — hotels ceased booking her, that kind of thing.

Collins: "Would you do it again, under the circumstances?"

Kitt: "Yes, I would. I believe that I was expressing my right of protest."

There is, of course, no "right" to accept an invitation to the White House, seize the mike once there, and deliver a lecture on the superiority of your views on foreign policy over against those of your host. Perhaps Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas didn't hire her to sing for fear that Miss Kitt might decide to bring along her right to protest, and deliver a speech to her audience rather than, say Mood Indigo, or whatever she sings.

Well, it turns out — says Miss Kitt — that Johnson ordered the FBI and the CIA to investigate her, and they did, and compiled a dossier on her which, said Kitt, among other things reported that in the description of one informant she was a "sadistic nymphomaniac."

Kitt and Collins both laughed, and Collins said it's funny how much emphasis the FBI and the CIA put on sex lives. "Could it be because they don't have any?"

The girls giggled, but didn't appear to take comfort from the corollary, which is that if it is so, future generations of Americans will be spared Sons of FBI and CIA. At that moment, my milemeter hit the three-mile mark, so this story has to end.

Dear Boris: How Could You?

To: Boris Onischenko
Soviet Fencer
Moscow, U.S.S.R. (or Siberia)

Dear Boris,
You can imagine how shocked I was to read in the newspapers last week that you were caught cheating in the fencing competition at the Olympics in Montreal last week.

How could you do it, Boris? How could you rig your epee electrically so you would be given credit for touching your opponent when you were actually stabbing thin air? What possessed you to throw away a gold medal and a promising career by wiring your sword on AC when the rules called for you to be on DC?

Your action has caused terrible anguish here in American because no one in his wildest dreams could ever imagine a Russian resorting to tricks to win an athletic competition. But the ramifications go far beyond sports. Boris, do you know what you've done by your action? You've sown seeds of distrust and despair.

There are some people in this country who feel that because of your sword, we can no longer trust the Soviets on SALT and disarmament. At this very moment, as I write to you, Henry Kissinger is sitting in his State Department office saying to himself, "If they're wiring their epees illegally, what are they doing with their MIRV missiles?"

Over at the Pentagon generals and admirals are gathered in the hallways saying to each other, "Is this the Soviet Union we always knew and believed?"

And on houseboats all over the Potomac, congressmen and senators are saying to their secretaries, "Honey, you and I are going to have to take another peek at detente."

Yes, Boris, when you plugged in your epee last week, you sent an electric shock felt round the world. Every country is asking itself, "How many Onischenkos are there in the Soviet Union waiting to fence with us with a phony sword?" In the United Nations, the Third World powers are asking, "Can we vote with a country that condones bad wiring up its athlete's sleeve?"

I know you must have an explanation for what you've done. They certainly didn't teach you cheating at the Karl Marx Elementary School in Kiev. And God knows your Communist teachers never taught it at the Fire of May High School in Leningrad. And certainly they had an honor code at Engels Military Academy in Smolensk. So the idea must have come to you from some other source.

It's not for me to conjecture where you picked up your bad habits, Boris. All I can tell you is that we Americans must now face up to the facts of life and insist on safeguards we never dreamed of before. These include on-site inspection of all your nuclear warheads, a renegotiation of any future wheat deals and a new look at your intentions in the Middle East.

We would never have thought of these things had we not been witness to your deceit in Canada.

I'm sorry I had to lay it on the line, Boris, but I thought you'd rather hear it from me than from one of your own people. We Americans are trusting souls. But we can be pushed just so far. When we see a fencing match on television and lights flashing when no one has been touched, even we know there is something rotten in Montreal.

I don't know how you can redeem yourself. If you were Japanese, I'd suggest you put on a ceremonial robe, remove the cotton tip and fall on your epee.

But since you're a Russian, you're going to have to figure out some other way of reclaiming your honor. Perhaps you can find yourself a good honest electrician in Moscow and get yourself rewired in time for the 1980 Olympics. I hope so, for your sake as well as ours.

Have a nice day.
Your friend,
A.P.

The Real Patrick Moynihan

WASHINGTON — The quixotic Daniel Patrick Moynihan, despite his cherubic cheeks and angelic blue eyes, still has the roughish look of an oversized Irish leprechaun.

There is mischief behind the blissful eyes, pugmaciousness behind the professorial manner. He came out of the sweltering New York City slum known as Hell's Kitchen, graduated cum laude from Tufts and taught at Harvard. There is a vestige of both environments in Moynihan today.

He made a national name for himself in the White House as Richard Nixon's resident Democrat. Now Moynihan is in full pursuit of a seat in the Senate.

He was in constant hot water while he served Nixon. Moynihan's statement that blacks should be treated with "benign neglect," for example, raised a howl from Harlem to Watts. But if his lack of tact aggravated the grim Nixon crowd, he shrugged off their criticisms with a fast quip and a bit of blame.

President Ford appointed Moynihan to be his United Nations ambassador. The irrepressible Irishman lasted only eight months. His trigger-tongue remarks, accusing just about the entire Third World of anti-Semitism, created an uproar around the world.

Moynihan's plunge into elective politics hasn't softened his abrasive nature nor silenced his blunt tongue. We intercepted him at the Democratic convention to ask whether he expected Jimmy Carter to campaign for him. "Presidents do not campaign for senators," Moynihan said, "senators campaign for Presidents."

He was even more testy with a young interviewer from the New York Public Interest Research Group. We have a tape of the unpublished interview, which reveals Moynihan in full flamboyance.

He looked over the prepared questions with an imperious eye and characterized them as "something you would get in a freshman course in comparative government in a not very good community college."

Asked what U.S. foreign policy should be toward the white regimes of Rhodesia and South Africa, he grumped: "That's not a good question ... It's just not a good question." Then he added crisply: "What do you mean, 'What should be our foreign policy?' ... You're talking to a man who has been an ambassador three times. Do you want a five-word answer?"

Then he turned on the interviewer, Chris Aidun, a college senior. "What are you studying?" demanded Moynihan.

"Economics," said Aidun. "Economics," mimicked the Irishman. "You are not yet an economist. Please don't ask ridiculous questions."

Moments later, he recommended that the interviewer read a book entitled "On Equality of Educational Opportunity," which Moynihan happened to coauthor. "It's the definitive work on the subject," he said modestly.

"Of the elderly? To improve their condition?" echoed Moynihan. "In what respect, make them younger?"

He added impatiently: "I don't understand how we can improve the condition of the elderly. That's a meaningless sentence. If you can't ask a meaningful question, don't ask at all."

There was another question about his "greatest weakness," as he saw it. Probably, he said, "an indisposition to answer such questions."

Footnote: In fairness to the feisty Moynihan, he is not really cavalier about the issues. He has taken staunch stands in favor of human rights, full employment, national health insurance and family assistance to the impoverished.

Moynihan explained to us that he had been abrupt with the interviewer because he seemed to want simple answers to complex questions. "This undergraduate came to me and he brought the professor out in me," said Moynihan. He wanted to impress upon the young man that he couldn't give yes-or-no answers.

GOOD NEIGHBORS? Somewhere between Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the bureaucrats who handle the diplomatic routines, our good neighbor policy toward Latin America often gets lost in the paperwork.

At the same time Kissinger was scattering flower petals around South America, for example, the bureaucrats in the backrooms were raising obstacles to keep Latin American visitors out of the country.

The ambassador from Ecuador, Jose C. Cardenas, became so frustrated that he dispatched a formal letter of protest to the State Dept. The letter charged that the United States had "systematically" denied visas to Ecuadorian citizens.

When we inquired about the letter at the Ecuadorian embassy, a spokesman at first issued a diplomatic denial. But the forthright ambassador later acknowledged that a protest was lodged several weeks ago.

Cardenas told us applications to visit America have been rejected "even in cases of petitioners who want to travel to this country for reasons of health or to attend to business." The ambassador added that many of the applicants are "of renowned moral and economic solvency."

Other Ecuadorian citizens, he said, had been required to post bonds as high as $2,000 before they are admitted.

From the State Dept., we got a typical bureaucratic response.

"The law treats all applicants for visas as having the intention of immigrating to this country unless they establish that they simply want to visit," said a spokesman. "It places the burden of proof on the applicant."

Concert in the Park

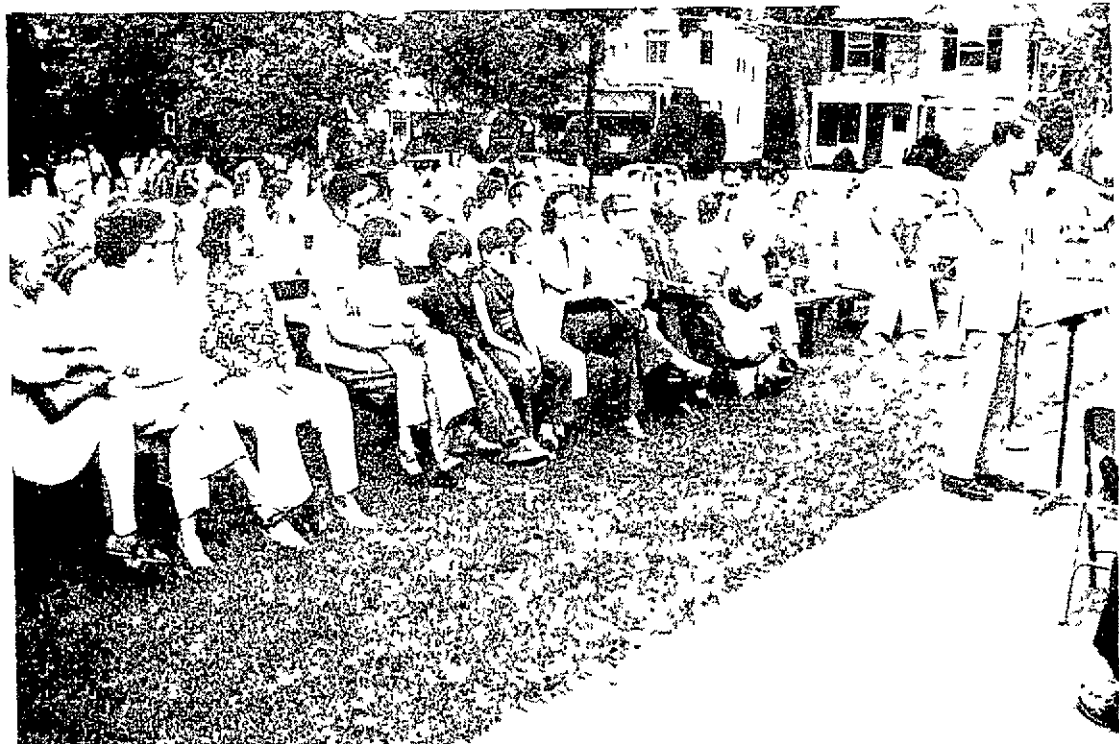

KINGSTON—Band concert night this week only will be Thursday, 7.30 o'clock, at the Academy Green Park. The weekly program is delayed one night this week because of the Children's Parade scheduled for Wednesday by the Kingston Recreation Department.

The programs usually given at 7.30 p.m. Wednesday nights is sponsored by the City of Kingston and the American Federation of Musicians Performance Trust Fund Local 215. The band, conducted by Lee Herrington, is composed of about 40 playing members from the Musicians Union Local 215, all of whom reside in the Kingston area.

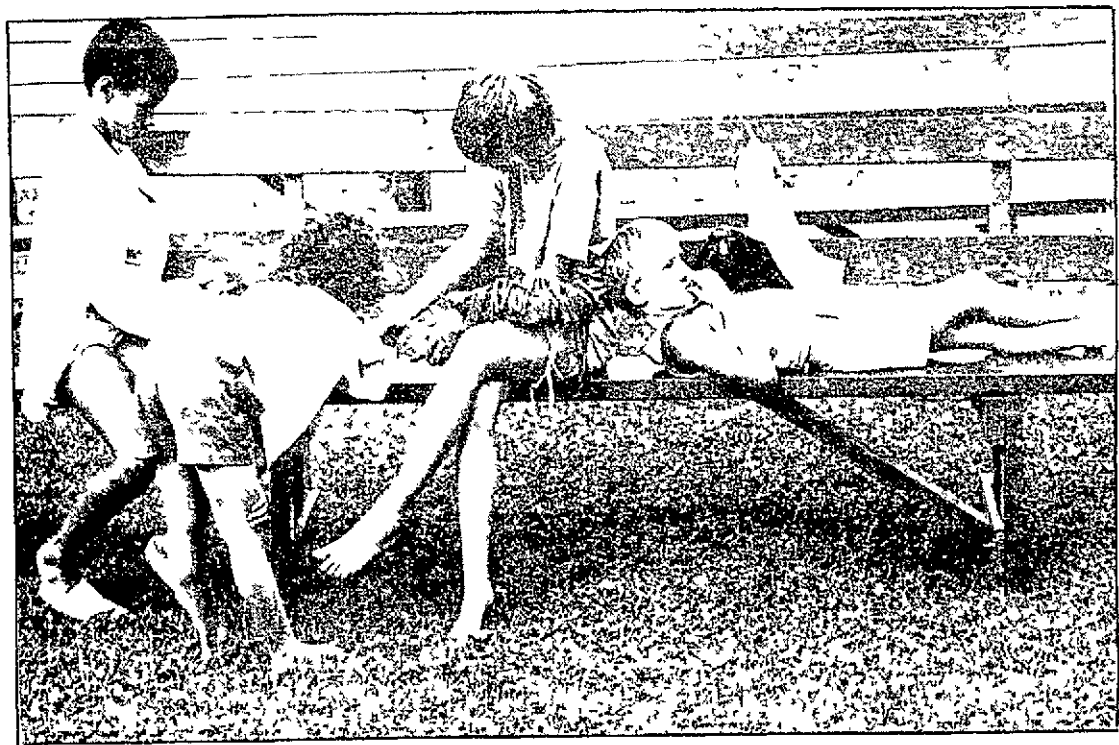

The audiences this summer have been increasing each week. Benches are provided and many bring their own lawn chairs.

Marches on Thursday's program will include Sousa's "Semper Fidelis", the Spanish march, "Amaprito Roco," "Barnum and Bailey's Favorite" by K. L. King, and many more including the overture to "Die Meistersinger" by Wagner, "Birth of the Blues" by Henderson.

This week will mark the half way program, the fifth in the series of 10 this summer.

Conductor Lee Herrington offers a soothing end to a music-lover's day.

Life

Trumpeter Myron Rossi fills the air with sweet sounds.

Reflections of surroundings are mirrored in this musician's sparkling tuba. Band concert night at Academy Green this week is set for Thursday instead of the usual Wednesday night due to tomorrow's Children's Parade.

Game's Improving Since She's Using Tennis Pro Tricks

So many people have been asking me if I am playing better tennis this year.

Mainly, they have been the people who played me last year.

I am happy to report that although my form is much the same, I have picked up a few tricks of the court that I have seen professionals use, which is bound to improve my game.

I have finally mastered what to do with the second tennis ball. Having small hands, I was becoming terribly self-conscious about keeping it in a can in the car while I served the first one. I noted some women tucked the second ball just inside the elastic leg of their tennis panties. I tried, but found the space already occupied by a leg. Now I simply drop the second ball down my cleavage, giving me a chest that often stuns my opponent throughout an entire set.

Next, I have learned how to stall, thus throwing my entire opponent's game off. It's called the old tie-the-shoe-trick. When your opponent is ready to serve, simply drop to your knees, untie your shoe, rearrange its tongue, and tie it again. Baseball players use the old stall all the time. (Cincinnati Reds pitcher Pat Zachry recently swallowed his chewing tobacco and threw up against a dugout wall. I haven't mastered at what hour

Another play is the rearrange-the-strings number. Never take the rap for a bad return or no return. Whenever you hit a ball into the net or miss it entirely, bring the game to a grinding halt by checking the strings of your racket, spending sometimes as much as five minutes separating them and testing their strength. This absolves you of any of the responsibility for a bad shot.

Forget all you have been told about concentration. It is overrated. Often, when there is time during one of my lobs, I yell across the net, "Your zipper is open," and have not only been ignored, but soundly punished for my good deed.

Probably my greatest accomplishment this year has been my skill at learning to play the game called, "Run Around the Backhand."

Early in my tennis career, I used to think when a ball landed to the left of me I had to use my backhand to return it. I have since learned that anything is better, including straddling a 15-foot cyclone fence.

No doubt about it — every day in every way, my game grows stronger. I saw one enthusiast the other day playing with his racket out of the press. I'll have to try that.

SUNY at Paltz Receives Gifts

NEW PALTZ—The music department at the State University College has received two major gifts, a record collection and an anthology of music.

The Rockefeller Foundation has given the college a 100-record collection of American music now being produced by the Recorded Anthology of American Music. This gift will trace the social and cultural history of the United States through its music. American music in all idioms and from all periods will be represented. Each record in the series, which will be distributed during the next two and a half years, is accompanied by extensive multipaged liner notes of selected discographies and bibliographies guiding the listener to further in-depth exploration. The college has received the first ten records of the series.

Mrs. Fave LeFevre, an alumna, 30 Plattekill Ave., New Paltz has donated eight volumes of the International Library of Music Commenting on Mrs. LeFevre's gift, Dr. O. Lincoln Igou, chairman of the Department of Music, said, "The collection is a truly remarkable one and does indeed represent an entire history of compositions for the last 300 years and more."

For now, both the record collection and books are located at the music department.

Civic Group Sets Antique Show

HIGH FALLS—The Annual Antique Show and Sale sponsored by the High Falls Civic Association will be held Aug. 21 and 22 at the Fire Hall. Admission will be charged with proceeds for the many projects of the Civic Association.

DEAR ABBY

Wife Disapproves of Boss-Secretary Lunches

DEAR ABBY: Your viewpoint and that of other executives' wives on the subject of husbands taking their secretaries out to lunch would be appreciated. The claim that there's nothing "wrong" in it makes me bristle. I disapprove, but am almost ashamed to say so because I am called absurd, insecure and just plain childish.

I am married to an executive and this is my problem. I was formerly a secretary (not his) and never found "business" to be the topic of conversation when my boss invited me to lunch.

I wonder what the silent league—the secretaries' husbands—have to say?

NOBODY'S FOOL

DEAR NOBODY'S: Lunching with one's boss is not in itself morally wrong, but the attendant gossip can do much harm. Circumstances differ, however, and one must consider the boss, the secretary, the place and the frequency of such dates. And who's feeding whom what.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who is a wonderful person, but my husband thinks her husband is a terrible bore. This friend has had us to her home for dinner several times, and I've been able to persuade my husband to go. But now he says, "No more!"

I have had this couple for dinner, and although my husband wasn't rude, he didn't urge them to stay longer when they said, rather early and halfheartedly, "I think we'd better be going."

Abby, I have entertained some of my husband's business friends, many of whom are bores, but I don't complain. So is it asking too much of him to do the same for me once in a while?

Why should we wives do all the giving?—EQUAL PARTNER

DEAR PARTNER: You shouldn't. And many don't. Why don't you play "let's make a deal"? As an equal partner, your husband should do as much for you as you do for him.

DEAR ABBY: The man signed DISGUSTED, who was wondering how to signal a waitress in a restaurant, should use a little common sense.

I've been a waitress for five years, and the first thing I do is let the customer "know my name. If the waitress doesn't do this, the customer should ask. It saves a lot of confusion when he needs something if he knows exactly who waited on him.

I don't know any waitress who likes to be called "Hey, Girlie," or have someone whistle or snap his fingers to summon her.

Thanks for hearing our side. —C. S.

DEAR C. S.: Not all waitresses want to be addressed by their names. Some feel it is too familiar. So unless the waitress is wearing a name pin, or introduces herself, I recommend calling her either "Miss" or "Waitress."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Rehearsal Tonight for Summer Chorus Concert

KINGSTON—Church of the Comforter, Wynkoop Place, is active every Tuesday evening as Ontario Summer Chorus busily sings and hums its way to an exciting concert scheduled for presentation Aug. 25, 8:15 p.m., in the J. Watson Bailey Junior High School.

Donald W. Brown of Newburgh conducts the chorus in his second season with the group. Highly regarded in music circles, he is co-accompanist with the touring group, "Yankee Male Chorus," was accompanist for the "Amphion Men's Glee Club" from 1956 to 1968 and became their conductor in 1969. He was director of music at the Stewart Air Force Base Chapel 1964 through 1969. He takes particular pride in remembering 1950 when he accompanied professional violinist, Emanuel Kornbluth.

Brown who lives in Newburgh with his wife, the former Jeanne Johnston and their six children, has also served in the Newburgh area as organist for St. John's Methodist and Dutch Reformed Churches and as organist-director for the Church of the Good Shepherd, Westminster Church, and since 1970 at Meadow Hill Reformed Church. In true community spirit, he was director of music for the Cornwall Fourth of July Pageant. He studied music at Ithaca College in preparation for his career but his vocation has been with the New York State Department of Transportation for 26 years as a Right's of Way Negotiator.

Any interested persons who wish to sing with the chorus should attend the rehearsal tonight, July 27, the last night for new member registration. Rehearsal is from 8 to 10 p.m. in the Church of the Comforter Hall, Wynkoop Place, just off Foxhall Avenue, Kingston.

Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Alan W. Sparks.

Woodstock Library Fair This Friday

WOODSTOCK—The Woodstock Library Fair, one of Woodstock's most traditional and exciting events, will be held this year, Friday, July 30, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Library grounds.

According to Kenneth Osterhoudt, chairman, and Rose Koplovitz, co-chairperson, this year's fair plans call for more than ever before. As usual, there will be book and rummage sales with large selections.

The annual "Great Expectations," will include awards of $300 in groceries from Mower's; 250 gallons of gasoline from Bob's Gulf Station; 10-speed bike and a TV set. In addition to these major awards, there will be others for presentation every 20 minutes during the day.

Another highlight will be Kitty Montgomery's Children's Midway with games and booths and food. The fair also features booths covering a wide range of items from cakes to plants, to aprons palm reading and astrology.

United Players Offering Two One-act Plays On Dinner-Theatre Program

KINGSTON—The new area repertory theatre company, The United Players, is preparing for the dinner-theatre program at Colonnade Restaurant this Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with two one-act plays: Chekhov's "A Marriage Proposal," and Jay Folb's "Don't Look Down." Dinner will be served at 7 with curtain time at 8:30 p.m.

Timothy de Illy, producer and actor; Christopher George Markunas, technical director and actor; Melanie Sue Burlingham, properties mistress and actress; Brian Hampshire, lighting engineer and stage manager; Barrett Douglas Ford, director.

As producer, de Illy is the main force behind the company. He studied theatre arts under the expertise of Joseph Happenny at Kingston High School, starred in the Maroon Theatre Company production of "You Can't Take It With You" and in several productions at Ulster County Community College. He recently performed the role of "Everyman" at Stratford, Ct., and has performed with the Marbltown Artist's Association and Coach House Players. de Illy studied make-up techniques with Bob Kelly whose cosmetic firm manufactured

all the wigs used in the movie "The Exorcist."

Markunas studied technical theatre at Temple University where he worked on such productions as "Indians," "Hamlet," "Salome," and "Country Wife." He also worked at the Hal Prince Theatre at the University of Pennsylvania on the production of "Three Penny Opera." He has worked with John Conklyn, New York Designer and

Ms. Burlingham, leading lady for the plays is also the props mistress where her talent of restoring furniture and upholstery is used. She has played several roles in Ulster County Community College productions.

Hampshire has worked as stage manager for several melodramas. He was assistant director and stage manager to the "Boob Tube Review." Locally he appeared in the '75 UCCC Summer Theatre production of "Music Man."

Ford has studied Theatre Arts at Kingston High School for three years with Joseph Happenny. He has also appeared with the Marbltown

Artists Association; has performed in two Reader's Theatre productions; done technical work at Kingston High School and for the Ulster Youth Theatre; and has also studied make-up techniques with Bob Kelly and de Illy. He will be attending Yale University in the fall where he will study directing.

Reservations for the dinner-theatre evenings may be made at The Colonnade.

WOODSTOCK—The Woodstock Playhouse August production, "Promenade All" was written by local playwright David V. Robison and ran on Broadway with Hume Cronyn, Eli Wallach, Anne Jackson and Richard Rackus during the spring of 1972. It has been produced widely in stock and won a Straw Hat Award as a best new play. It will start next week Wednesday, Aug. 4.

"Promenade All" will follow "The Faun", a comedy satire on Victorian and Edwardian conventions which is currently on the Playhouse boards from now until Sunday, Aug. 1. Performances are nightly at 8:30 p.m. with Sunday curtain at 7 and matinees at 2:30 Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The dramatization of "The Emperor's New Clothes" performed by The Traveling Playhouse will be given at Woodstock Playhouse Saturday, July 31, 11 a.m. The story is based on the Hans Christian Anderson folk-tale and is intended for children up to mid-teens although adults seem to enjoy the play as much as youngsters. All seats are $1.75.

The Traveling Playhouse is a professional Actors Equity group of adults who transform favorite children's tales into reality on stage. Now beginning its 26th season, it has given many thousands of performances before a combined audience of millions of children. The company has travelled throughout the United States and its production of "Robin Hood" has been seen many times nationally on NBC-TV.

Next Monday night, Aug. 2, 8:30 p.m., Bill Vanaver and Livia Drapkin perform in a special concert, "The Coming Together Dance and Music Festival". These artists do a variety of things in one evening, a little bit of theatre, music and dance — but nothing among the ordinary. Their program will include a traditional man's dance from Azerbaijan, USSR, a medley of Irish music, a hornpipe clog dance and a medley of music from Crete. A highlight of the program will be the premiere of "Romp," choreography by Livia Drapkin, music by Bill Vanaver with additional musicians and dancers. "Romp" is a portion of a work-in-progress based on the Orpheus myth.

Saugerties Man's Play to Be Presented Wednesday at Arts Council Meeting

SAUGERTIES—From the time of the concept of the poet king and the philosopher king society at large has often questioned the pragmatism of these conceptual wizards.

"The Black Bag and the Circle," a one-act play by Paul Miller of Saugerties, deals with the artist's role as he sees himself as contrasted with that role as seen by society.

The Council plans to have

informal play reading sessions at future meetings if the interest is generated.

The meeting, open to the house at the mouth of the Esopus on the Hudson River. Artists in the local area, particularly in Woodstock, seem to think that society owes a special debt to them. We hope that the performance will generate some interesting discussion on this subject, both at the meeting and afterwards.

The occasion of the play's performance will be the Saugerties Arts Council meeting at 8 p.m., July 28 at the Sawyer Savings Bank.

Martin Henderson of the Performing Arts of Woodstock, an actor well known to local audiences, will be featured in

Arnold Wesker's "Kitchen" Opens This Week

SARATOGA SPRINGS—The John Houseman Summer Theatre season opens this week at the Performing Arts Festival with Arnold Wesker's "The Kitchen". Performances will continue July 28 to 30 at 8 p.m. and Saturday, July 31, 5 and 9 p.m. The Acting Company whose artistic director is John Houseman, will be seen in four other productions this summer. Shakespeare's "Love's Labour's Lost" will be next week's offering.

New York City Ballet is in the final week of nightly performances ending Saturday evening, 8:15 p.m. with the new "Union Jack" and "Dances at a Gathering." The new "Panfare" will be given with "Union Jack" Saturday at 2 p.m.

Matinees Added for Christie Play

HYDE PARK — Two matinees have been added for the Agatha Christie play "Toward Zero," at the Hyde Park Playhouse in response to the overwhelming enthusiasm for the production. Matinees will be Wednesday, July 28 and Saturday, July 31, 2:30 p.m. Both performances have been budget priced at $3.95. In addition an extra evening performance has been added for tonight, 8:30 p.m.

The playhouse has also announced that a family musical "Eye Bye Birdie" will replace "Desire Under the Elms" as the fourth major attraction of the summer. "Eye Bye Birdie" will run August 4 through 8 and Aug. 10 through 15, at 8:30 p.m. and matinees on Aug. 7, 11 and 14.

The Hyde Park Playhouse is located on Rte. 9 opposite the Vanderbilt Estate.

Talent Contest Planned for Fair

NEW PALTZ — A local talent contest is being sponsored by the Ulster County Fair as part of the New York State Fair Talent Search. The local contest will be held Sunday, Aug. 15 at Ulster County Fair Grounds, with the winner performing at the New York State Fair later this year.

Contestants must be 16 years of age or more and non-professional. Each act will be limited to five minutes and may be comprised of solos, duets, trios, quartets and instrumental groups. Rock groups, bands, blue grass and country western groups are eligible for competition in a variety showcase.

Prizes of from $100 to $1,500 can be won at the state level. Entry forms may be secured from John Florsch, secretary-treasurer of the Ulster County Agricultural Society, 4 Boxwood Court, Saugerties. No entry fee is required. Applications must be submitted by Aug. 7.

Trouble Ahead?

Social Security costs have begun to outstrip payroll receipts. The Conference Board notes. The problem: the number of retired beneficiaries is rising faster than the labor force, 49 per cent against 23 per cent between 1965 and 1975. With this trend projected to continue over the next 10 years, increases in the Social Security tax rate or the taxable earnings base could be on the agenda.

Free Crafts Classes At Mountain Metals

KINGSTON—Mountain Metals, a non-profit crafts school in Kingston, is offering free crafts classes for area young people from eight to 20 years. The six week program is offered in conjunction with Ulster County and New York State Division for Youth and is fully insured. The courses begin Aug. 3. Individuals and school, church and youth groups will be welcome.

Free basket weaving course will be held every Tuesday for six weeks beginning Aug. 3. There will be morning, afternoon and evening classes. The course includes weaving a small reed container. Colonial and Indian weaving styles will also be taught. Basket weaving is open to young people from 8 to 20 years.

Free stained glass classes will be held every Thursday for six weeks beginning Aug. 7. There will be morning, afternoon and evening sessions. Students will be taught to cut glass, and solder small window or hanging objects using the copper foil method. All materials will be free in both courses. Stained glass is open to young people from 12 to 20 years old.

Further information and a full schedule of courses may be obtained from Mountain Metals, 3 Dunn St., Kingston, 12401.

Saugerties Defeats Kingston for County Legion Title

KINGSTON — It's on to the New York State District American Legion baseball tournament for Saugerties now that it has disposed of Kingston in the annual Ulster County championship series.

The Sawyers successfully completed a comeback in the best-of-three series Monday night at Dietz Stadium by rallying to down Kingston, 8-2, and earn a two-to-one triumph in games.

Tim Cole struck out 11 and hurled a four-hitter for Saugerties, which led by a run early in the contest, fell behind by a marker midway through it, then exploded off Kingston relief pitching for four runs in the fifth and three more in the sixth. And while Kingston couldn't deny the win for Saugerties, its players and fans were probably considering another of those mighty "ifs". In this case the "if" was what would have happened "if" starting pitcher Dave Loeffler hadn't have come up with a sore arm?

Loeffler had held Saugerties to a run and two hits through four innings. But when he was forced to go, manager Ron Secreto was wounded to the bullpen and the roof caved in. Whether Loeffler would have remained in control is something for the losers to mull until next year's series.

Saugerties broke the ice against Loeffler in the second when walks to Karl Lezette and Marc Becker and a wild pitch put men on second and third. Nick Malgieri then bounced into a fielder's choice, Lezette getting nabbed at the plate. But Loeffler then balked and Becker pranced across.

Kingston reached Cole for a pair in the fourth. Joe Augustine walked and stole second. Loeffler then rapped a single for one run and Joe Kelderhouse followed with a double for another tally. Cole firmly shut the door after that.

Bob Schlanger was on the mound for Kingston in the fifth after Loeffler had to be removed due to his injury. With two out and Jay Harris on base, Schlanger walked. That forced Secreto to make a move and he decided to intentionally walk Lezette, filling the bases.

The strategy failed as Becker unloaded a base-clearing triple for three runs. Malgieri followed with an RBI double.

Schlanger was in trouble again in the sixth as a walk to Joe Maines, a single by Jim Hackett and an infield hit by Harris refilled the bases.

Augustine came in to pitch for Kingston and was greeted by a two-run single by Steve Martin. An error gave Saugerties its final run.

The date and site of Saugerties' first District game has not been announced.

Kingston sees action this weekend in the Albany County All-Star tournament at Blecker Stadium. That event begins Saturday at 8 p.m.

SPORTS TODAY

Buildup Finished, So Are Russians

MONTREAL (UPI) — Today was supposed to be the day the United States avenged its national honor, the day it got its revenge with Russia.

For four long years, ever since that disputed decision in Munich, the Americans talked about, planned for and reveled in the triumph that would be theirs.

Well, the big buildup is finished and so are the Russians. Only the gold and the glory remain and, frankly, that's all the Americans care about.

The long-awaited dream of a rematch between the U.S. and Russia got punctured Monday when the Soviet Union dropped an 89-84 decision to Yugoslavia in an afternoon semifinal before the Yanks went out at night to overwhelm host Canada, 95-77.

Thus, it will be the United States vs. Yugoslavia for the gold medal tonight in a game starting at 9 p.m. EDT. The two teams already have met once during the Olympic tournament, the Yanks winning by 19 points.

"Maybe we were looking forward to playing the Russians," said center Mitch Kupchak of North Carolina, "but that's over now. They lost and Yugoslavia played a great game. I'm just happy to be in the final.

"It's been built up as the United States and Russia, but sometimes it doesn't work out the way the media wants it."

Indiana teammates Scott May and Quinn Buckner, who combined for 34 points in the easy victory over Canada, agreed with Kupchak's assessment.

"I don't know about being disappointed," said Buckner. "I'm just happy to be playing for the gold medal. The Russians lost, and that's the facts of life. I don't care who we're playing. I just want to go out and play basketball."

Added May, "We started off in May expecting we'd play tomorrow for the gold medal. Like Quinn says, as long as we're going to be in there, I'm not disappointed about the Russians."

At Munich in 1972, the Soviet Union won the gold medal with a highly-disputed 51-50 victory over the Americans.

It was a banner day all around for the U.S. basketball troops Monday since the women's team came away with a surprising silver medal by beating Czechoslovakia, 83-67, behind 17 points from Luisa Harris. This was the first time women's basketball has been included on the Olympic program, and the Americans never before had finished higher than eighth in international competition.

The Soviet Union, which hasn't lost a game in three years, won the gold medal.

Trailing 53-52 with 11:18 left in the game, the U.S. scored 15 consecutive points and went on to win for the third time in five outings.

"We were so high in the second half I thought we were going to fly through the roof," said Mary Anne O'Connor. "We got hungry for the ball and after a few of our earlier games we had things to show people."

Drawing added attention to today's men's championship is the fact that there is no activity in track and field and little competition in other sports.

For the American athletes, a rest day might be just the right prescription after their disastrous showing on the track Monday. Six gold medals were awarded, and none went to the U.S.

After the first four days and 15 events, 10 of them in the men's competition, the United States has just two golds. This is as good as a reason why the Americans are only third in the gold medal standing with 21. Both the Soviet Union and East Germany have 27 each.

Overall, Russia has a total of 73 medals, the U.S. 61 and East Germany 58.

The biggest disappointment Monday was the failure of Dave Roberts, the world record holder at 18 feet, 8-1/2 inches, to win the pole vault, and he just may have outguessed himself out of the gold when he passed up 18-2-1/2 to try for 18-4-1/2.

"I'm really not that disappointed," said Roberts, a University of Florida medical student who had to settle for the bronze medal behind winner Tadeusz Slusarski of Poland, who had a leap of 18-0-1/2. "Considering the conditions, all three of the medal winners did extremely well. But I'm not making any excuses because the conditions affected everybody equally."

"I figured I could go 5.60 meters (18-4-1/2) just as easily as I could do 5.55 (18-2-1/2). I didn't know it was going to rain, though."

The only other medals taken by the U.S. on the track came in the 200 meters, where Don Quarrie of Jamaica beat out American youngsters Millard Hampton and Dwayne Evans. Quarrie won in 20.23 seconds while Hampton and Evans were timed in 20.29 and 20.43 respectively.

"I thought I had a chance," said Hampton, the California junior college sprint champion from San Jose City College. "But Don was just too strong on the turn."

In the other track finals, Hungary's Miklos Nemeth set a world record of 310 feet, 4-1/2 inches in winning the men's javelin; newlywed Lasse Viren of Finland successfully defended his 10,000 meter championship in 27 minutes, 40.38 seconds; Tatiana Kazanki of Russia won the women's 800 meters in a world record time of 1:54.94, and East Germany's Siegrun Siegl won the women's pentathlon with 4,745 points.

The United States qualified nine boxers for the quarterfinals with three more victories Monday night. Heavyweight John Tate of Knoxville, Tenn., and light heavyweight Leon Spinks of St. Louis registered decisions while Spinks' brother, Michael, a middleweight, advanced on a forfeit.

Despite their 112-93 victory over Yugoslavia last week, the American basketball team isn't taking tonight's final lightly.

"The psychological edge is with them," reckoned U.S. Coach Dean Smith. "If we were playing the Soviet Union, then the psychological edge would be with us. Many people think the psychological edge is more important than the players."

"They're the biggest team we've faced, and they played a super basketball game against Russia. We've scouted them over the past year and they're a very sound team. Each person knows exactly what his role is."

Smith pointed out that despite the big margin of victory in that first meeting, the U.S. led by only five points with about five minutes to play before Yugoslavia went cold.

"The thing that concerns me is their physical size inside," said May. "Their front line is a lot bigger than ours. We have to move 'em around and play a controlled offense."

"I think if we can control their big men inside and make them take the long shot, we'll do alright."

Meantime, a film Smith showed the team may have been for naught.

"Last Saturday before the game against Italy I showed them the film of the game against Russia in Munich," the coach said. "I know when I saw it on TV I got goosebumps and wanted to go out and play. I thought maybe they'd feel the same way."

Now we'll never know.

Japan's Yamamoto is dwarfed by Russia's 7-2 Iuliya Semanova.

Women's Coach Eyes Gold Medal in 1980

MONTREAL (UPI) — Women's basketball was included at the Olympics for the first time this year and the United States entered the competition thinking it might have a shot at a gold medal.

The Americans had to settle for a silver, but next time, American coach Billie Jean Moore figures things will be different.

"We have made great strides in women's athletics in the past three years or so," said Moore, coach at California-Fullerton. "If things continue, by 1980 we should be the favorites to win the Olympic gold."

That is pretty high talk for the Americans. The Soviet Union has a lock on women's basketball right now. They have not lost a game in nearly four years and have a 10-year-old, 7-2 center, Iuliya Semanova, who dominates the game, which was obvious when the Russians closed out the women's competition Monday night with a 98-75 win over Japan, giving them a 5-0 record. Semanova played only the first half and had 20 points.

The United States, which had a 3-2 record along with Bulgaria, was awarded the silver medal after its 83-67 win over Czechoslovakia Monday because it beat Bulgaria, 95-79, earlier in the tournament.

"Right now, I'd say the gap between the United States and Russia is about 10 inches," said Moore, referring to the fact the American women centers are 6-2 or 6-

3. "But we don't need to have a 7-footer to be able to play with anybody."

"If we can get someone who is 6-5 or 6-6 and plays like Lucy (Harris) or Sue (Dunkel, the American centers) we can beat anyone. And in the next few years I think you will find some taller girls coming around."

The Olympic final was a milestone for women's basketball in America. Before the Olympics, the Americans had never finished higher than eighth in international competition and there were those who had their doubts about the ability of the United States to compete at the Olympic level.

"Even before we clinched a medal we had made reservations for a party Monday afternoon," said Moore. "We felt they deserved something just because they qualified. There were a lot of people who doubted if we could make it here and to walk away being second is not bad at our stage."

The American women even admitted they had some doubts after their first game in the tournament. They opened by losing to Japan, 84-71.

"After losing to Japan and then to Russia we thought we had shot our chances of being first or second," said Moore. "But the way things worked out we were in good shape."

scrutinizing spectators at basketball games.

"We are not taking particular extra precautions today because it is the anniversary," the security spokesman said. "We're just doing our job as usual, keeping our eyes open and hoping that nothing will happen."

During the past several months Canadian newspapers have reported many rumors of terrorist groups heading for Montreal. Even the notorious "Jedakal" was said to have been in the city earlier this year, perhaps to case the Olympic site for an attack. But nobody actually reported that he was spotted by a policeman.

Arab terrorists were not the only source of concern for security officers. There were also Quebec separatists who might threaten members of the British royal family during their visit. Irish nationalists anxious for an international platform, dissidents from around the world ready to use violence for political purposes.

But the spotlight was on the potential Arab problem and tightly-guarded Israeli athletes.

Their plight was recognized by Israeli Chief of Mission Samuel Lalkin, who held the same position in the tragic days at Munich.

"We do not live in fear," Lalkin said. "But we are always prepared for any eventuality that comes up."

Orioles Aren't Giving Up

By UPI
John Wayne would be proud of the "true grit" the Baltimore Orioles are displaying in the face of the New York Yankees' 13-1/2 game lead in the American League East.

Leads of that size at this time of the season have been overcome a few times in the past but more often than not the leading team has padded it's lead. The Yankees, therefore, appear to be a shoo-in but the Orioles are refusing to give up. The Orioles' veterans remember, for one thing, that only two years ago they made up a 7-1/2 game deficit after Labor Day and won the division title.

"I'm still optimistic and until we're mathematically eliminated, I'll be convinced that we're in the running," said Bobby Grich Monday night after the Orioles defeated Jim Hunter and the Yankees 3-1. "Strange things happen in baseball and you only have to look at all the other teams that managed to fall from what looked like strong positions once in the league to see that."

"And in beating their best pitcher, which is what I consider Hunter, is the best possible way to open a series against them," Grich added. "In other words, I don't think our chances of catching New York are impossible."

Steinbrenner Is Not Named

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department has taken court action to recover damages from the American Ship Building Co., for allegedly charging illegal campaign contributions to government contractors.

The firm's board chairman, George M. Steinbrenner III, also is principal owner of the New York Yankees.

The company, in a statement issued at its Cleveland, Ohio, headquarters, pointed out that the action was filed against the company, and not Steinbrenner personally.

"Naturally, it's going to take a big streak on our part to cut into their lead," said Manager Earl Weaver. "But we play them 12 more times and we should feel confident should we do well in those games."

Ross Grimsley pitched a six-hitter for his third victory, Al Bumbry hit his fourth homer and Reggie Jackson hit a two-run double as the Orioles handed Hunter his ninth loss against 12 wins. Fred Stanley singled in the Yankees' run in the fifth inning.

Indians 9, Red Sox 4

Rico Carty drove in four runs with two doubles and Rick Manning homered for Cleveland, which dealt Boston its seventh loss in eight games since Don Zimmer replaced Darrell Johnson as manager. Tom Buskey received credit for the victory with five innings of one-run relief. The loss was Luis Tiant's ninth against 10 wins.

Rangers 3, Twins 0

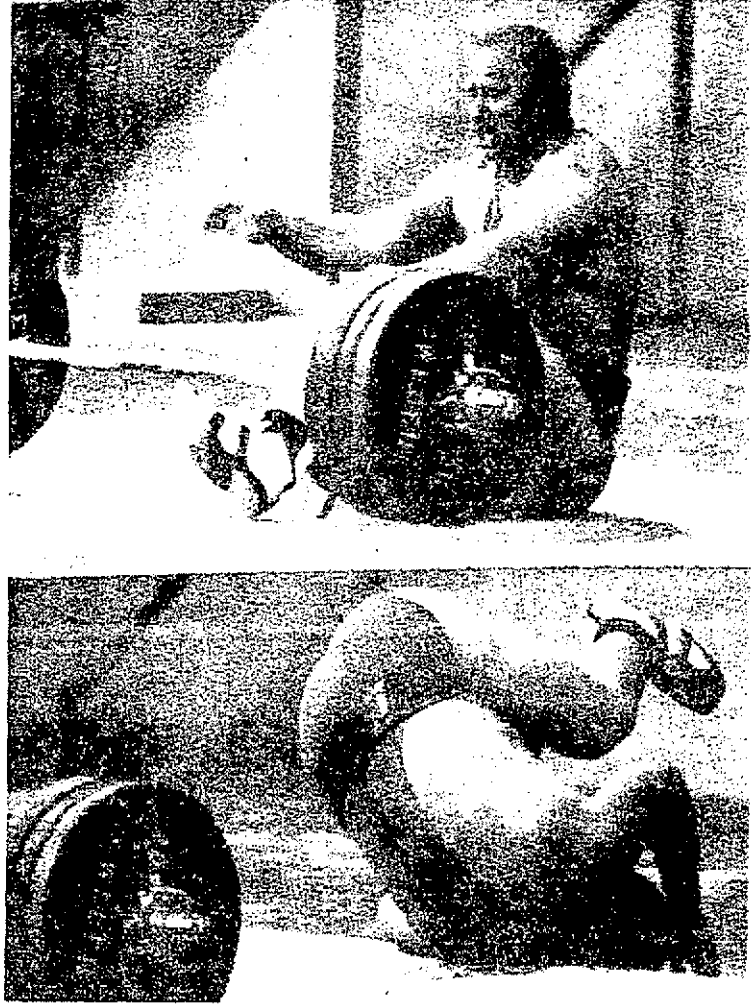

Bert Blyleven pitched a two-hitter and Toby Harrah homered for Texas. Blyleven struck out nine and walked one, allowing a scratch single to Steve Braun in the fourth and a single to Craig Kusick in the seventh. The homer was Harrah's ninth.

Royals 4, Angels 0

Al Fitzmorris pitched a six-hitter for his second shutout of the season and Amos Otis hit a two-run double, sparking Kansas City to its victory over Nolan Ryan and California. It was the 12th win for Fitzmorris, who struck out seven. Ryan struck out seven, increasing his major league leading total to 184, but lost his 13th decision.

A's 3, White Sox 1

Bill North singled, stole his 49th and 50th bases and scored the go-ahead run for Oakland on a single by Bert Campaneris. Paul Mitchell went 7-2-3 in his fourth straight victory with Rolfe Fingers finishing up. Sal Bando hit his 20th homer for the A's.

Braves Breeze, 19-4

KINGSTON — The Kingston Braves brought their hitting clothes and the Marlboro Jets forgot their fielding togs.

That was the story Monday night at Dietz Stadium as the Braves crushed Marlboro, 19-4, in a Hudson Valley Rookie League second round game.

Kingston rapped out 17 hits in the contest including three apiece by Rich Koegel, Larry Panella and Tom Gallo. The Jets did their part, hobbling the ball seven times.

The recipient of all the good fortune was Kingston starter and winner Bruce Hurley, who had a relatively easy five-hitter made a bit more difficult by four walks and three Kingston miscues.

Kingston opened with four runs in the first, followed with five in the second, added two in the third, then five more in the fourth. After a scoreless fifth, the Braves finished up with three in the sixth.

The score was 19-1 until Marlboro managed three runs in the seventh.

Panella drove in four runs in the game, Koegel and Duane Carey had three RBIs apiece and Gallo and Tom Whitaker each sent in two men.

Kingston took a page from the Roadrunner's book by stealing eight bases, four by player-manager Gerry Hawkins and two by Bob Marz. Kris Kilroy and Koegel swiped the other two bags.

Oddly, the only extra base hit in the game was Koegel's double.

Starter Harry Collier took the defeat for the Jets, who are struggling through a 2-20 season.

Kingston is now 19-2 on the year, 11-1 in the first round, 8-1 in the second.

The Braves entertain New Paltz Thursday night at 8 p.m. at Dietz.

Norman Won't Complain

By UPI

One by one, baseball observers show only the highest regard for Cincinnati's manager Sparky Anderson. So it comes as a rude awakening that Anderson calls himself a "dummy" when he thinks of how he's treated Fred Norman.

Norman, who won 12 of 16 decisions last year, was removed from the starting rotation after he being bombed in the fourth game of the season on April 13 against New York. He didn't start another game for two months.

Since being reinstated to the rotation, however, Norman has won nine games and lost only one, the latest victory coming when he tossed a seven-hitter and lowered his league-leading ERA to 2.38 Monday night in Cincinnati's 9-3 romp over the Giants.

Sparky Anderson didn't exactly praise himself for lifting Norman from the rotation earlier this season.

"The guy who didn't start him all that time was awful dumb," Anderson chuckled. "I won't mention any names but he's got a 10 on the back of his uniform." No, 10 happens to be Anderson's number. He laughed and added, "It's great to be known as a genius."

Fred Norman softly says he can't understand some of the decisions Sparky has made as manager but he's happy to be on the club and won't ever say anything bad or ask any questions.

"I won't complain. I'm just glad to be pitching the way I am and to help the ballclub."

Norman, who struck out six and walked three, improved his lifetime record at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium to 31-7 with the help of four hits apiece from George Foster and Dan Driessen. Pete Rose, bidding for his fourth National League batting title, had three hits.

The Reds scored twice in the first inning off John Montefusco, the first coming on Rose's third leadoff homer in the last seven games and ninth of the season.

The second of Driessen's four hits, a double, scored Ken Griffey in the third. Driessen, who drove in three runs, is batting over .300 and making aging slugger Tony Perez possible trade.

A double by Reds ignited a three-run fourth as the Reds touched Giants' reliever Mike Caldwell for five hits.

In other games, Philadelphia beat New York, 4-1, Montreal swept a doubleheader from Chicago, 2-1 and 3-1, Los Angeles stopped Atlanta 6-2 and Houston beat San Diego 7-0. Pittsburgh at St. Louis was rained out.

Phils 4, Mets 1

Dave Cash laced a triple to lead off the sixth and raced home on Larry Bowa's sacrifice fly as Philadelphia turned back New York for its 13th win in 17 decisions. Larry Christenson hurled the first six innings to record his ninth victory in 15 decisions but needed three innings relief help from Tug McGraw.

Four Years Ago...

MONTREAL (UPI) — It was on this day of the Summer Games in Munich four years ago that terror and death struck the Olympic Village.

What happened then — on Tuesday of the second week of the 20th Olympiad — turned today's Montreal Olympic spectacular into a grim security exercise, directed by concerned men determined to prevent another slaughter of innocent athletes for political purposes.

The reason for their concern: the latest report of international terrorist movement — from West Germany via Australia to Canada's west coast, and then on to Montreal and the Olympic Games.

"So far, this is still a rumor and we expect it will turn out the same way as the rest of the rumors," an Olympic security spokesman told UPI late Monday night. "But you can safely assume that all rumors are properly checked out."

On this day of the Olympics in 1972, Arab terrorists launched the raid that eventually killed 11 Israeli athletes, a West German policeman and five of the infiltrators.

Competition was eventually suspended for 24 hours, but the Games never were the same.

Today there are several thousand fully armed Canadian troops, city and provincial police and private security officers guarding the Olympic Village, watching the gates at the Olympic Stadium,

Mastro Blanks Woodside, 13-0

KINGSTON — The optimists like to say that a game against Mastro Construction at any field other than Block Park negates that awesome Mastro power.

Maybe so, but the City Slo-Pitch A Division sluggers can't lose if the other guys don't score and that's what happened in a recent game at Hasbrouck Park as the Woodside fell before the Construction club, 13-0.

In other A Division games, Sea Del sank Ray's Village Inn, 9-4, and A & W pounded Magoo's, 18-4.

Chick Boice flipped a five-hit shutout for Mastro and helped himself with a double and a triple. Tom Flore hit the winners' only homer in this one as they cranked out 20 hits to cruise to the win.

Ray Reynolds unloaded a grand slam homer and a double and John Watzka and Julius Chick also homered to power Sea Del to its win.

Tom Auringer, Frank Allen, Ernie Bodie, Earl Edmonds, Don Hastings and Timmy Bowens all homered as A & W scored Steve Englehart and Bob Hummer clouted homers for the losers.

In the Saugerties Athletic Association A Division, Glasco A.C. reeled off two more victories to tie it with Mt. View Tack Shop in the games behind column while boosting its first place percentage to .875 as compared to the second place team's .800.

Glasco downed Kaye Sports, 14-4, with George Warfield hitting two homers and knocking in five runs and Joe Roberti unloading two singles, a double and a triple good for three runs.

Glasco also clubbed A.J. Construction, 4-3, Ray Lasher winning his seventh and Konopka driving in a pair.

Could Be Mars Life

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Encouraged by the existence of nitrogen and evidence of water, scientists believe life on Mars could be discovered by Viking 1, starting its second week of exploration today.

Scientists today will try once more to fix Viking's crippled seismometer and make the final course corrections for Viking 2's approach to Mars. The exploring robot's formal hunt for life on the planet begins Wednesday, and the presence of nitrogen near the planet's surface means life could exist on Mars.

"If you just increased the oxygen abundance on Mars, we could breathe that atmosphere," Dr. Tobias Owen said. "We're breathing all those things now."

Owen said it and other gases in the atmosphere also suggest the planet had — and may still have — enough water in the form of ice to submerge a six-story building.

"The conclusion is that Mars represents a sort of intermediate case between Earth and the moon," he said. "There's quite a bit of water around, which may still be there."

A second color photo was released Monday showed a gray portion of the Viking spacecraft, including an orange cable, in addition to the surface and sky.

"The sky is indeed a pink to a kind of cream orange," said Dr. Thomas Mutch, chief of Viking's picture analysts. The surface is stained an even deeper rust-red than first believed.

The report showed the thin Mars air has 95 per cent carbon dioxide, 2 to 3 per cent nitrogen and 1 to 2 per cent argon. In comparison, Earth has 78 per cent nitrogen, 21 per cent oxygen, 1 per cent argon and a tiny amount of carbon dioxide.

Viking earlier discovered nitrogen in Mars' upper atmosphere, but the measurements at the surface were not conclusive. Dr. Gerald Soffen, a biologist and chief scientist of the $1 billion project, was ecstatic.

"People have always tried to find the reasons we could not have life on Mars," he said. "It was always too cold, it was always too dry, it was always too barren of oxygen, it was always too barren of nitrogen. I think we've got all the elements necessary (for life). The question is, did it happen?"

The first results from Viking's three biology instruments are expected Aug. 9. Owen, of the State University of New York, said the makeup of the Martian atmosphere suggests Mars has enough water.

Radio Uganda denied the report and an earlier conflicting story by Nairobi's Standard newspaper that claimed disgruntled army troops attacked the command post with rifle fire.

The radio admitted there had been shooting in Kampala Saturday but attributed it to test firing of new anti-aircraft and anti-tank weapons by Amin, his two wives and a four-year-old son. It appealed to Ugandans not to panic.

Other reports spread that Amin had fled Uganda. Residents in the capital of Kampala, contacted by telephone, were extremely nervous and refused to talk.

Another attempt was made on Amin's life in early June when attackers threw grenades at his limousine, killing the driver, a bodyguard and dozens of other persons but leaving him almost unscathed.

The unpredictable Ugandan said afterward he was saved "by God's wish" and claimed he was unafraid of future danger because "if I am going to die God will tell me."

But diplomatic observers said Amin, who came to power in a bloodless coup more than five years ago, was fighting for political survival and appeared to be slipping from power as problems piled up on him.

Both the Nation and Standard said Amin was now so fearful for his life he was staying with different friends each evening.

Uganda's supreme policy-making body, the Defense Council, reportedly was studying whether Amin should be forced to step down. Diplomats said there was no clear successor.

With his factories at a standstill and private driving banned, Amin Monday further tightened rationing by announcing that no flights, not even East African Airways, which is owned jointly by Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda, would be refueled in Uganda.

On the Beach

Marine biologist Gary Davis (l) and University of Michigan professor Frances Fisher struggle to move a pilot whale off the beach at Loggerhead Key and into shallow water. Approximately 30 whales beached themselves, the third time that has happened recently in Florida waters.

'God's Wish' Protects Amin

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — President Idi Amin of Uganda, who once said "God's wish" protected him against assassins, escaped a bomb attack three days ago in which several guards were killed, a Kenya newspaper said today.

The Daily Nation said two bombs exploded at Amin's hilltop military headquarters in Kampala Saturday and a third bomb was defused. It said Amin was not injured in the attack but an unknown number of his guards were killed.

Radio Uganda denied the report and an earlier conflicting story by Nairobi's Standard newspaper that claimed disgruntled army troops attacked the command post with rifle fire.

The radio admitted there had been shooting in Kampala Saturday but attributed it to test firing of new anti-aircraft and anti-tank weapons by Amin, his two wives and a four-year-old son. It appealed to Ugandans not to panic.

Jean Adams

By Jean Adams, Phd.

ACCUSED: (Q.) I know this guy. His name is Joe. His friend told his mother that he caught us in the bedroom doing something bad. Joe tried to tell her that was not true, but she did not believe him.

I like Joe a lot and he likes me a lot. Please help to keep us together. —Suspected in South Carolina

(A.) Parents should listen to their children before judging them. Joe's mother didn't listen to him. Go with Joe and talk to her. Ask her to hear your account of what happened. Tell her the truth. Ask her to ask you questions about anything she is doubtful about. If she asks any questions answer them truthfully.

VISITORS: (Q.) I'm going with this guy, Mike, and I really like him a lot. I was babysitting one night and he came to the house where I was. His best friend and two other girls were with him. He only stayed a few minutes.

But after he left I got to thinking about it and I got sorta jealous because one of the girls was really pretty and it looked to me like a double date. Next time I saw him I asked him and he told me nothing was going on between them, that they were just riding around.

What should I do? Should I trust him and believe what he said or should I look deeper into the subject? I'm 14 and he's 15. Please help. —Worry Wart in Pennsylvania

(A.) Don't make a big thing out of a small thing. If Mike had meant anything heavy with the other girl, the last thing he would have done would be to bring her by to visit you. Cross-examine a boy you like and showing jealousy without a good reason can make you look bad in his eyes.

Another thing: A girl who is babysitting should not have social visitors. She is on a job, and work time is not visiting time. Also, having visitors in a situation like that can start things that aren't easy to stop. Even when nothing happens, other people may notice and be suspicious.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, JULY 28
Your birthday today: Sees you in the early stages of an effort to establish a central theory with which to operate toward career success. Don't go into a tailspin over occasionally unproductive periods; they're necessary to let your mind digest current experience. Relationships drift well enough to help in moments of need, fare better by investing real attention. Today's natives are generous, often optimistic beyond factual basis.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Let today be a lull in your onward push. Bring details up to date, make room for greater action coming soon. Listen attentively to all ages.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Continue on the goodwill and momentum of yesterday. Take care of work laid out. Add to savings early in the day, that way you aren't tempted to splurge.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Make sensible changes, but be sure everybody can keep going full speed ahead on production. Your urge to trade things off reaches a peak late day.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Probability increases of meeting people who will provide further introductions. Earning capabilities rise in tacit recognition of your progress.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Cater to an expansive mood in all except spending. There's enough extra expense without your reckless impulses. Organize something friends can share.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): New developments, a fresh approach resolve chronic concerns. Prospects are bright where you know the material well and see how you can make a quick profit.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are asked for money; it's up to you to say "no" firmly. You've special aptitude now for creative effort that in time will provide all you need.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's sufficient if you simply manage your own affairs, with emphasis on maintenance. Set up a revised, more conservative budget, increasing reserves.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Check signals with silent partners. Your enterprises need minor changes, trouble shooting. A blaze of publicity serves no purpose just yet.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get your full work quota done on time. New people encountered this evening become very important later. Give them a chance to get well acquainted.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Estimates are misleading, or you sense something isn't right. Make major decisions, purchases at the last hour. Clear up details first.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Plan for prudent thrift. However, money is for spending, sometimes quickly, unexpectedly, which is likely today. Be sure you get what you pay for.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Old-fashioned logic works

that the finesse was a sure thing. If West had held a five-card diamond suit he would have opened it. In auction you led your longest suit against notrump. West betide any iconoclast who violated that rule. Hence, when West showed out on the second club lead he was marked with 4-4-4-1 distribution.

A contract declarer would probably make the same play, but it would not be a sure thing. Contract players don't always lead their longest suit.

Barbs

By PHIL PASTORET

One quick way to adjust to the heat is to calculate how much it will cost to get the air conditioner fixed.

The boss grumps that, when we sleep at our desk, at least we're not making mistakes.

Watching those gargantuan trucks going down our street makes us want to put up a sign, "Road Under Destruction."

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's hand is typical of the hands shown in the auction bridge columns and books of 50 or 60 years ago. South bid one notrump and everyone would pass since in auction you got credit for all over tricks below the line.

West would open the three of spades and the defense would gather in four spade tricks. East would signal with the 10 of diamonds on the fourth spade and West would lead a diamond.

South would take his ace of diamonds and cash four club tricks. West would discard three diamonds.

Now South would cash his ace and queen of hearts and finesse for West's jack in order to score nine tricks and win the rubber.
